Year of the Flight

CHURUBUSCO HIGH SCHOOL

Churubusco, Indiana

Volume XX

The "YEAR of the FLIGHT" brings

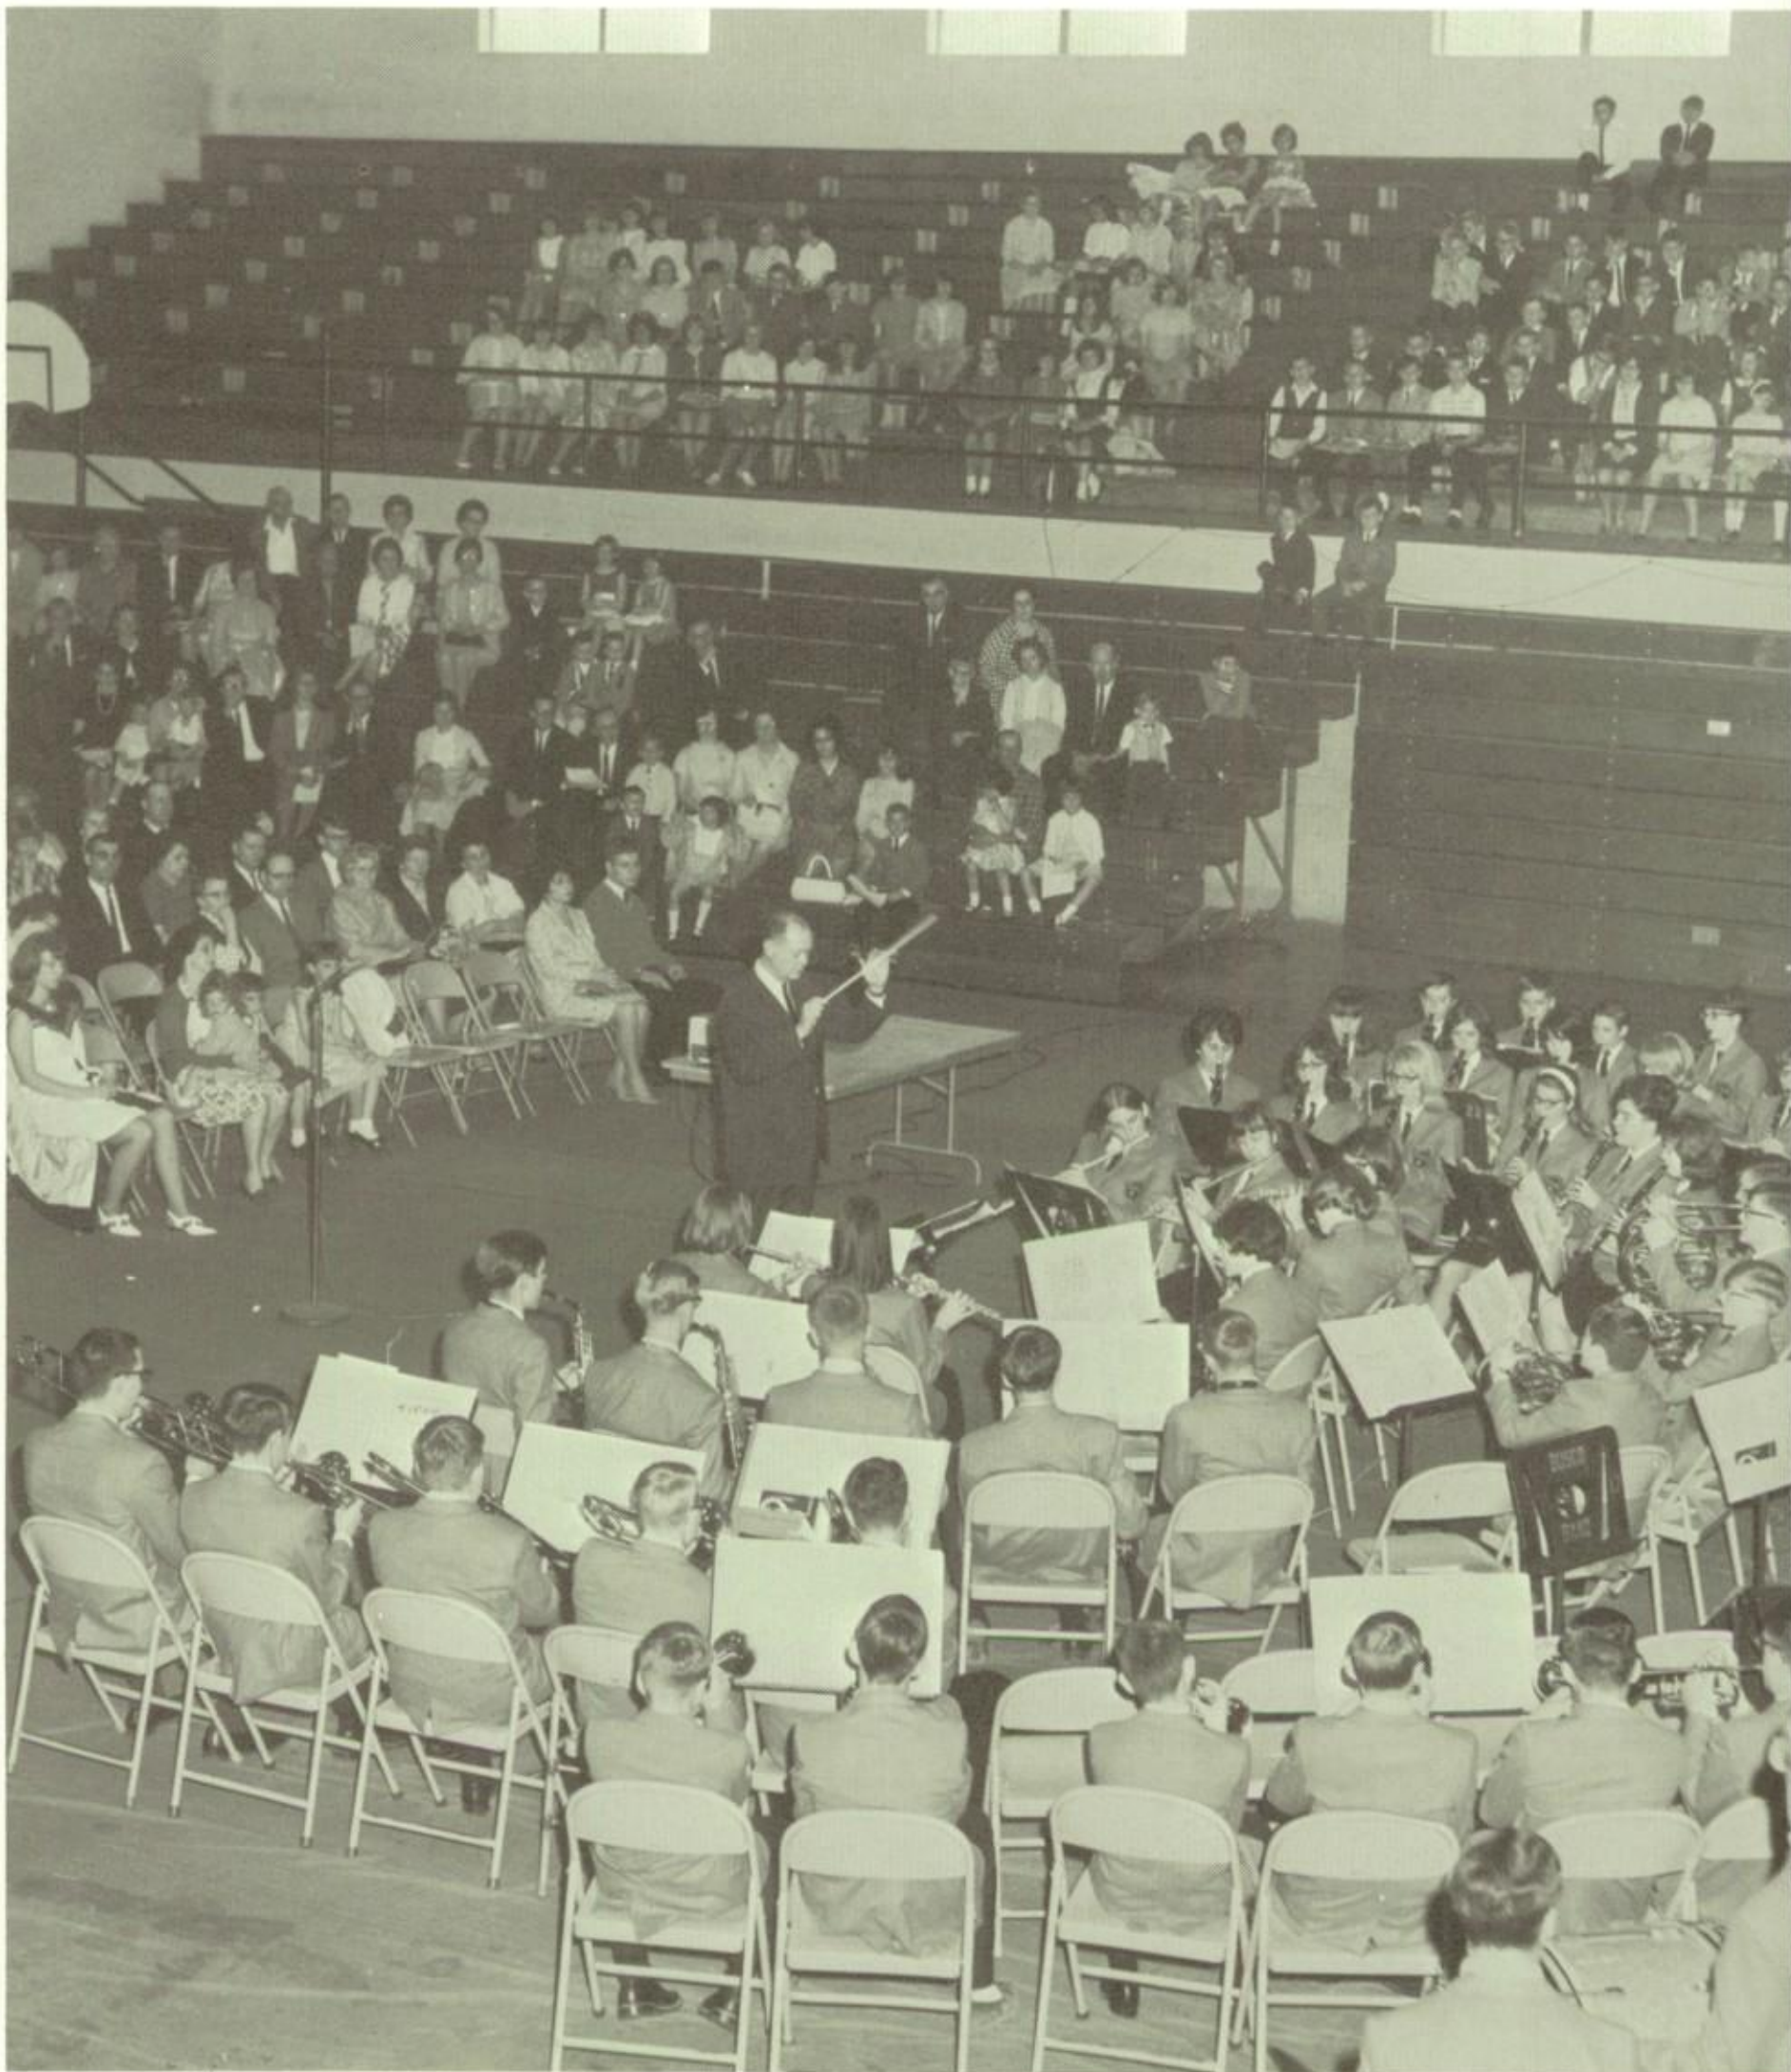

The 1967 flight brings CHS soaring into moments, days, weeks, months, and the year as a whole. Three hundred and thirty-four Eagles fly through the ringing halls. Some Eagles are filled with laughter, others with solemn thoughts. The flight consists of steadies, buddies, and studies. Extra-curricular activities add spirit to their lives.

The Eagle soars into classrooms and makes them alive and interesting. He flies into sports and has a successful victory, or he shows good sportsmanship if defeated. The Eagle appears in all clubs, organizations and displays leadership, but best of all the Eagle adds happiness to make every day special at CHS.

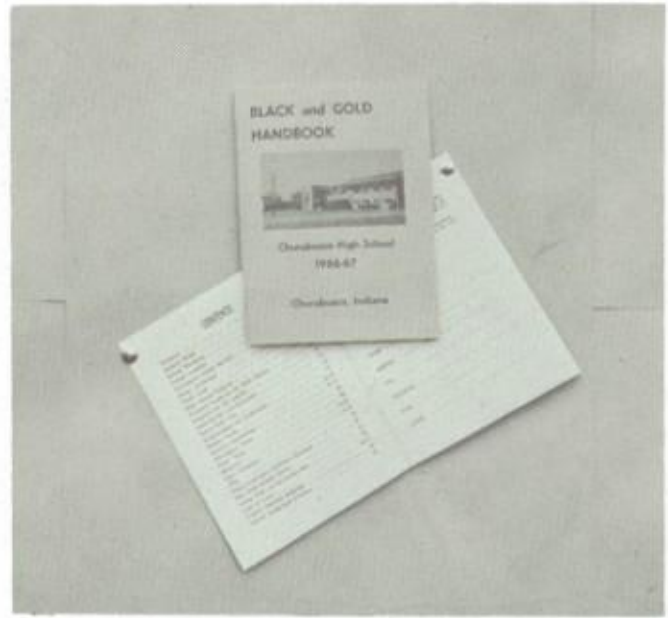

One cannot see the whole flight at a glance, but it takes a year to know the feeling of the students at CHS. To understand us one has to know happiness, sadness, enthusiasm, anger, and frustration; but at the end of the flight we find the greatest years of our lives have passed into the clouds, and we must reach higher for our future lives. We will remember these years at CHS forever, and we will cherish them because we know they will never return.

Memories and experiences to remember

VIA TO SCHOOL LIFE . . .

Fans hold their breath at a tense moment in a basketball game.

Vickie Boggs plays Santa Claus and Vickee Herron tells her all the goodies she wants. It all makes an interesting pep session.

Activities add spice to school life

Mr. and Mrs. Paxson enjoyed dancing along with the other students at the dance sponsored by FHA.

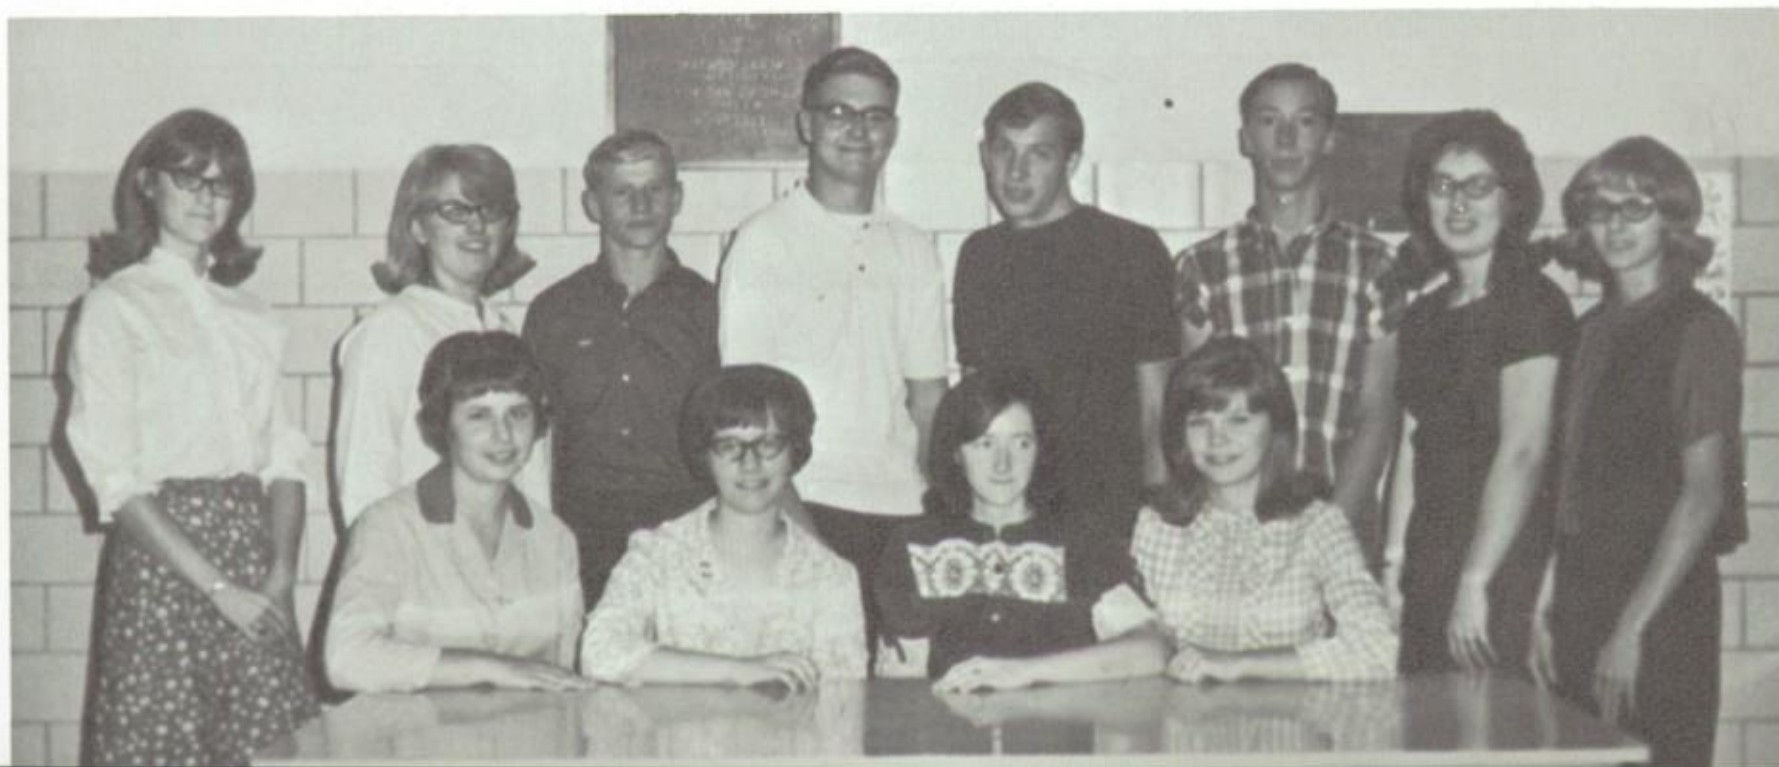

Dennis Clouse, Rick McDowell, Vickie McNeal, Charlene Woll, Linda Honeywell, Vickee Herron, Mark Holloper, and Dave McEowen were members of the Cleftones. The group sang for various gatherings and appeared on television. They received an "excellent" rating at state vocal contest.

Special groups received recognition

Front Row: Vickee Herron, delegate; Joyce Harter, delegate; Charlene Woll, delegate; Vickie McNeal, delegate. Row 2: Vickie Boggs, alternate; Peggy Patton, alternate; Phil Carpenter, alternate; Dave McEowen, delegate; Lynn Gross, delegate; Mike Miller, alternate; Linda Honeywell, alternate; and Kay Geist, alternate. The delegates attended Girls' and Boys' State at Indiana University Campus.

The graduating class of 1967 held two very successful fish fries. The class members worked together to run a smooth fish fry, and a large profit was their reward.

The juniors sold candy and according to all accounts made a good profit. Mark Hollopeter is unloading a large shipment of candy.

Washington, D.C. via class projects

The class of 1969 chose burgundy sweaters with white letters. After what seemed like an endless wait, the sweaters arrived and were worn with pride.

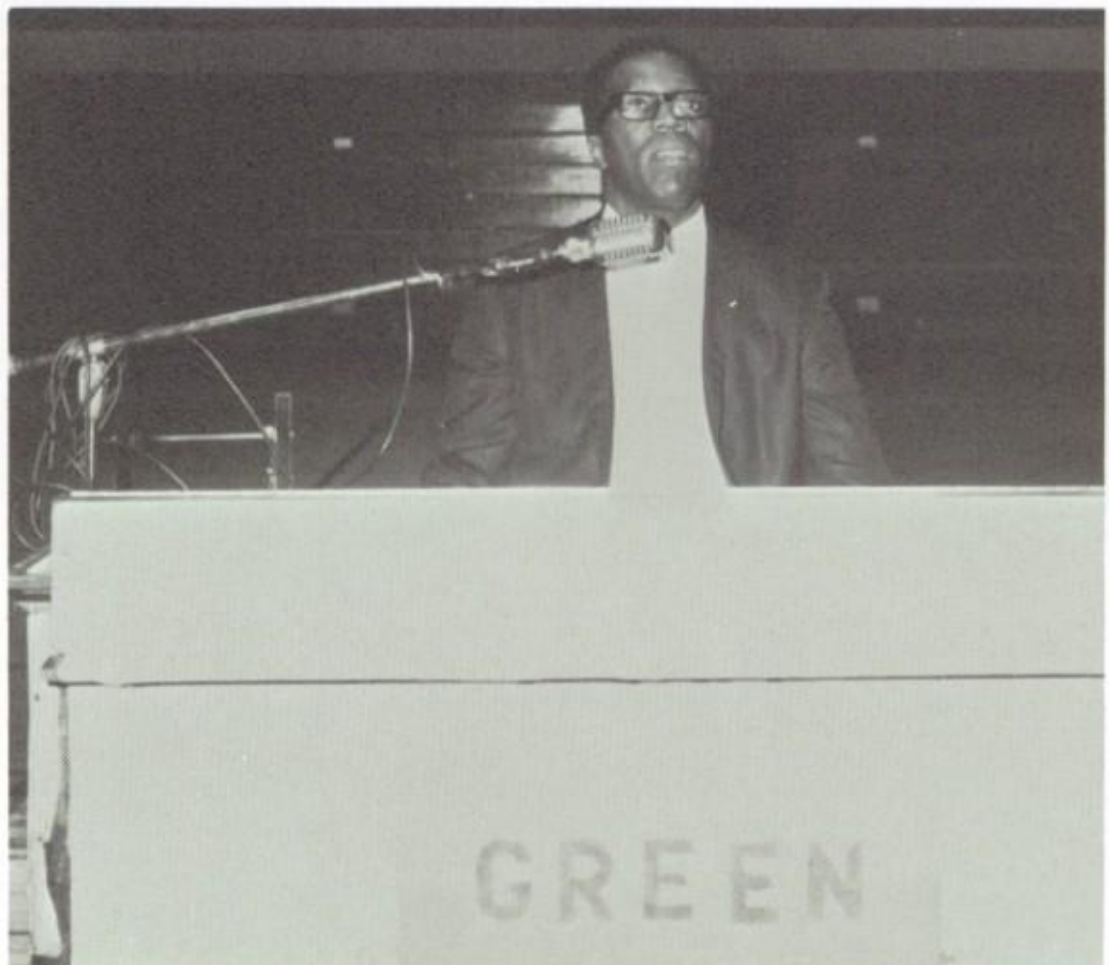

Convocations offer change of pace

This jolly person has just completed his demonstration of clown make-up and is up for inspection.

John Bonar isn't really enjoying his second childhood. He's only aiding one of our assembly speakers by trying to fit his 6'7" frame on the world's smallest bicycle.

Mr. Green presented one of the most interesting of our assembly programs. He played the organ very beautifully and also sang requests from the audience.

The cast—Seated: David McEowen, Marcia McEowen, Barb Green, Mary Jo Mathieu, Kathy Amber. Standing: Vickie McNeal, Steve King, Kenna Geiger, Gail Peninger, Jo Ann

Honeywell, Robin Allman, Penny Lamle, Debbie Allman, Linda Honeywell, Charlene Woll, Rick McDowell, Barb Fudge.

All-school play proves successful

Look Ma, no silverware! Backstage some of the cast devour a rather raunchy-looking cake that was used in the play.

A new feature at C.H.S. was a play in which parts were open to any high school student. The comedy "Share Bath" presented such opportunities for dramatic creativity.

The Junior Plays of the past had been only moderately successful; therefore, since the need for new stage equipment was greater than the needs of a class treasury, the All-School Play was thought to be the best solution. The play was presented on the 5th and 6th of November and netted 118 dollars toward the new equipment.

Probably none of the cast will ever perform on Broadway, but that was not the goal. The first-time actors played their roles well and gained valuable experience in public speaking. Every member of the cast realized the importance of teamwork.

Although the senior play, "We Shook the Family Tree," did not merit a NEW YORK TIMES REVIEW, the experience of acting in front of a large audience will prove to be valuable to each member of the cast who will at some time have to be a public speaker.

The numerous hours of preparation, broken by an occasional prank, enabled the seniors to give a successful and memorable performance.

Mr. Harold Norman, aided by student director Charlene Woll, directed the eleven member cast, in addition to supervising the ticket sales and the ushering.

"Then she washed the claylike mud from her face. Boy, was she beautiful!" Vickee Herron tells Kay Geist who is doubtful about the black beauty clay.

Seniors present a successful comedy

Sitting: Sandy Geiger, Vickie Boggs, Vickee Herron, Dave McEwen, Vickie McNeal, Kay Geist. Standing: Verne Gaff, Steve King, Cheryl Kistler, Peggy Patton, Rick McDowell, Lynn Gross.

The hours of preparation took shape with everyone's help. These people spelled out the theme on the stage.

A year's preparation creates a very

Junior girls worked very hard and long hours to make the prom perfect.

Who could ever believe that a little kleenex and some chicken wire could be a main focal point in the decoration of a school gymnasium?

What evening stroll "In the Misty Moonlight" would be complete without a fountain?

successful prom night

The theme of the 1967 Junior-Senior Prom was "In the Misty Moonlight."

A false ceiling of dark blue crepe paper was erected. In the center a revolving mirror ball was hung with a light shining on it. The entrance way was decorated with trees and patio lamps. As one entered the gym crossing a bridge decorated with patio lights, a fountain of shooting water could be seen. To make the theme more realistic, silver stars were hung from the ceiling.

The ceremony was started with Kim Staub reading the class prophecy, and Rick McDowell read the class will. The Dave Sands Trio from Wolf Lake furnished the music for the evening.

Miss Annabeth Gaff was crowned queen. Her court was Sue Dirr, Kay Geist, Vickie Boggs, and Linda Pippenger.

The film "A Very Special Favor" was shown. Later in the morning a breakfast was served in the cafeteria.

The Prom will be remembered by many because of the great time everyone had.

Even in decorating for a prom one can make practical use of knowledge gained in a shop class, especially in the construction of a foot bridge.

This entrance, complete with trees, patio lamps, and a bridge, gave a warm welcome to those who attended the prom.

PROM QUEEN AND COURT

Center: Queen Annabeth Gaff. Standing: Sue Dirr, Kay Geist, Vickie Boggs, Linda Pippenger.

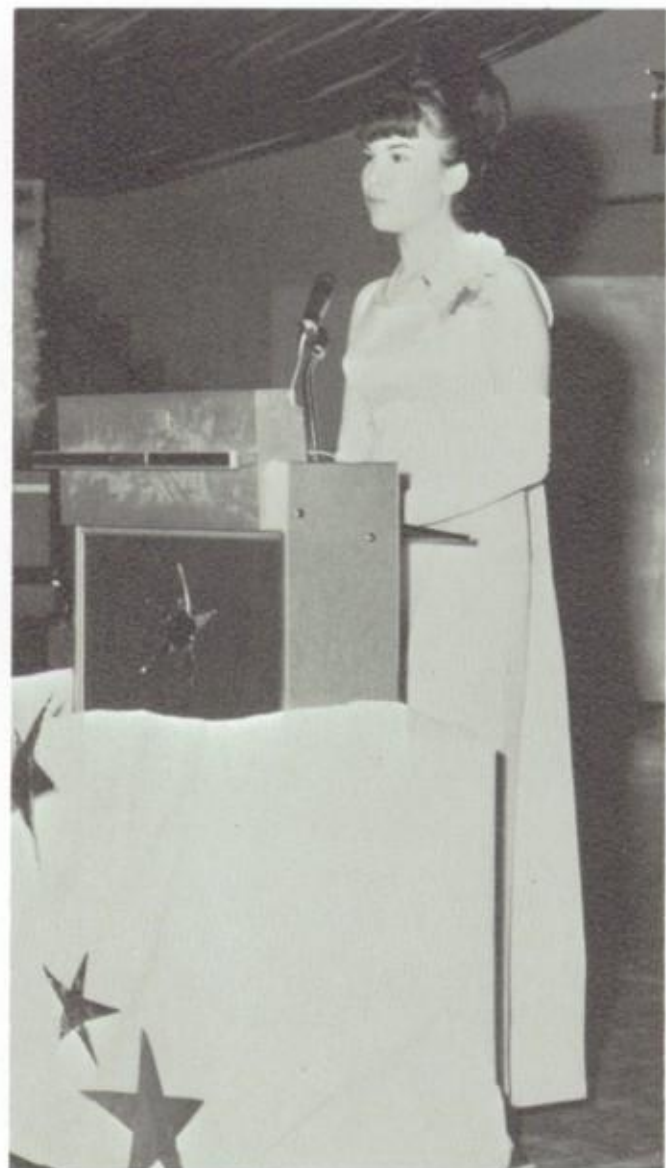

At 2:00 in the morning approximately 100 people attended the breakfast given by the junior class.

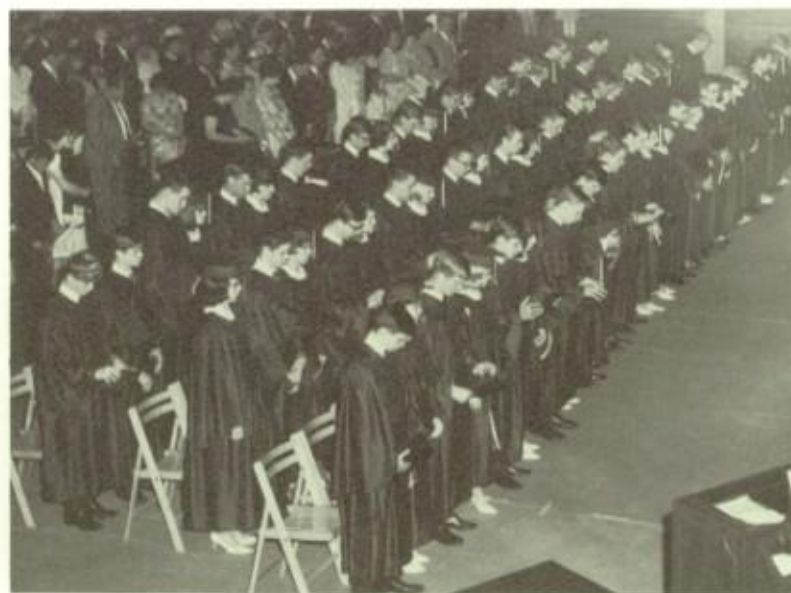

Rick McDowell, vice-president of the senior class, and Ron Friskney, vice-president of the junior class, transfer the loving cup.

Kim Straub reads the prophecy of the senior class.

Only thirteen steps and it will be all over. It is not the end of the world for these teens; it is just the beginning.

In the midst of all the bustle and excitement of graduation, everyone pauses for a moment of meditation.

The baccalaureate for the class of 1967 took place on May twenty-first. Reverend Richard Kistler gave a very inspiring message. The date for the commencement exercises was May twenty-fifth. The ceremony took place in the high school gymnasium which was decorated with white roses and gold chrysanthemums, white and gold being the class colors. The Cleftones sang two very beautiful numbers. Reverend Ervin Petznik delivered the graduation address, "No Man is an Island." Mr. Everett Jones, President of the school board, and Mr. Rex Baker, Principal, presented the diplomas. After forming the traditional friendship circle, the new graduates of Churubusco High School marched down the aisle to receive the congratulations of their proud parents and friends.

Commencement revealed mixed emotions

As part of the commencement ceremonies the Cleftones sang "The Halls of Ivy" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

The seniors are ready and willing for take-off to start the first phase of the long awaited senior trip.

Senior trip provides many experiences

This is the view many students saw from their hotel rooms in New York City.

Sixty-five seniors and their sponsors, Mr. Charles Jones, Mrs. Ellen Snyder, and Mr. Rex Baker, principal, departed from Baer Field on May 8 for Washington, D.C. and New York City. Their tour of Washington, D.C. included such sites as Arlington Cemetery and Capitol Hill.

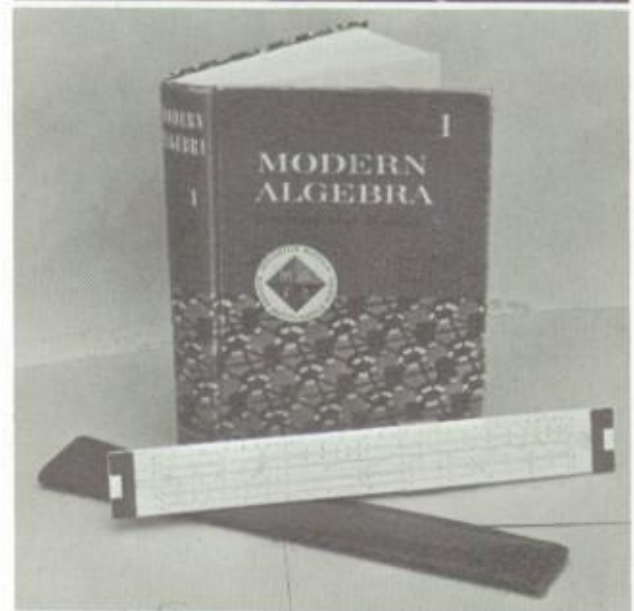

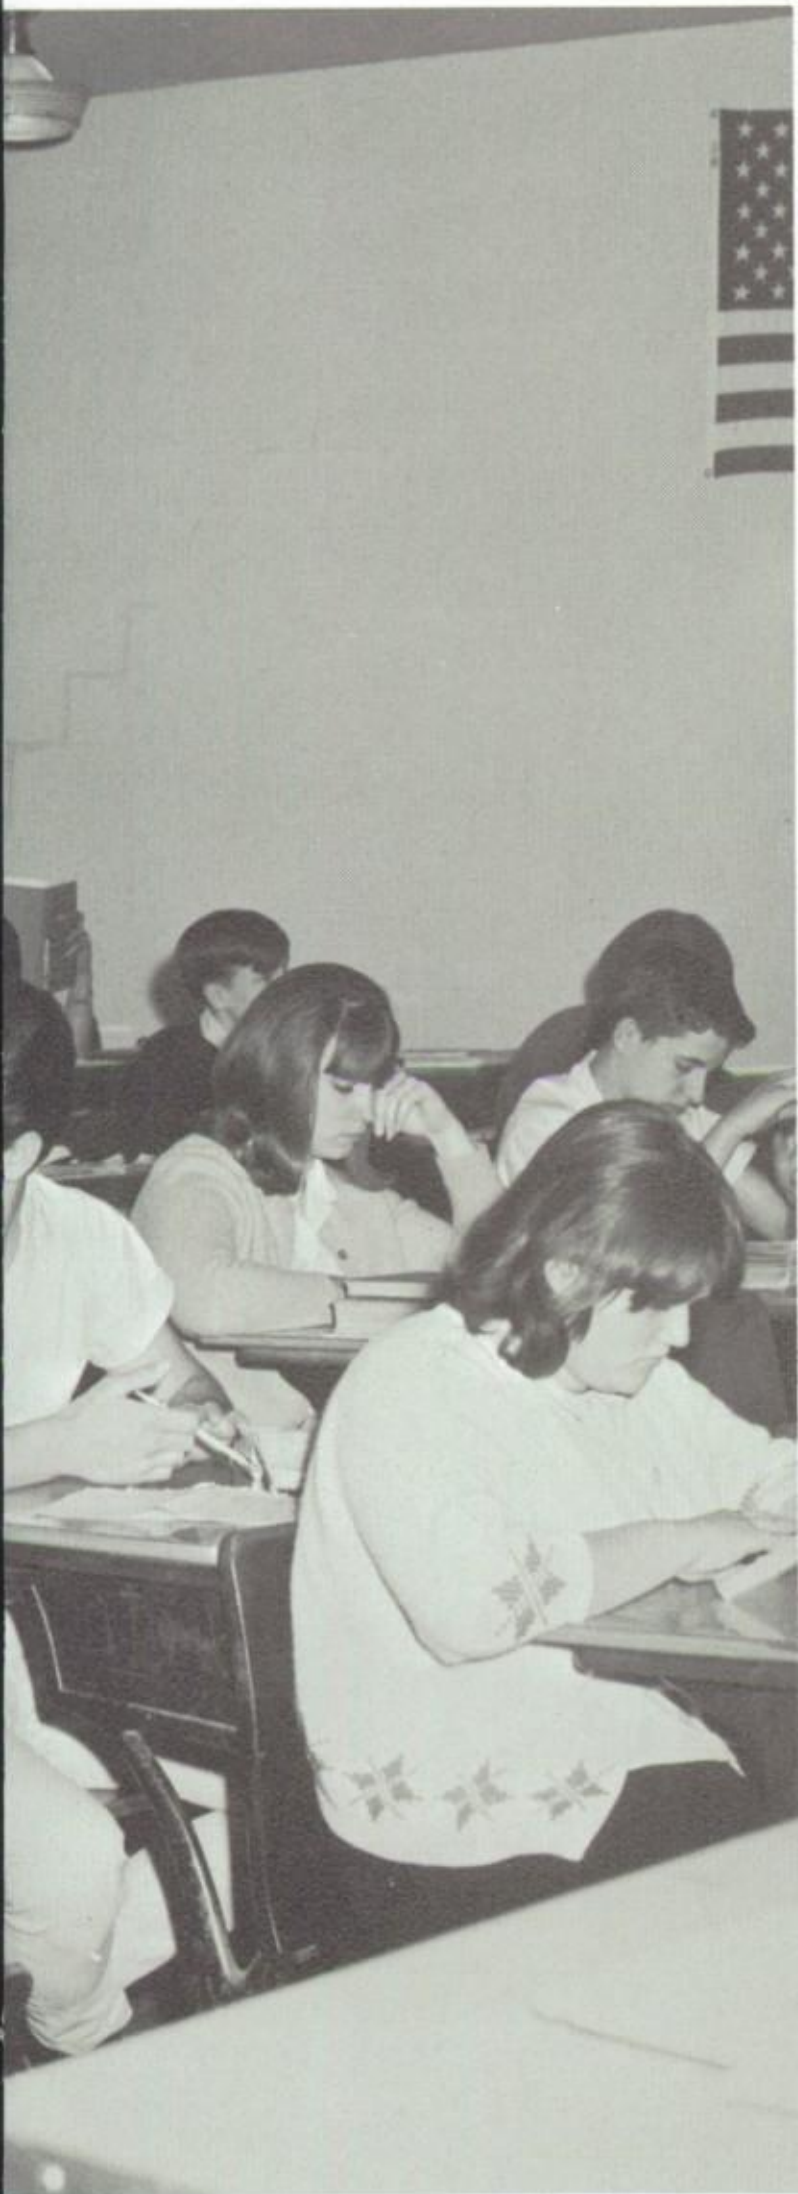

To reach New York City from Washington, D.C. they traveled by buses. In New York City they saw a play of their choice, Funny Girl, Fiddler on the Roof, or Mame. They arrived home on May 11.

One of the highlights of the trip to Washington, D.C. and New York City was this site of Capitol Hill.

who are entering a world of business

Working hard, Kay Diffendarfer prepares her lesson for office practice.

Students enrolled in the commercial course attend classes in typing, business law, shorthand, economics, office practice, and bookkeeping. These classes are designed to educate the student who has a business career in mind. Typing and shorthand students acquire new skills while business law and economics pupils learn the rules of the business world and how to budget their money. These classes are all essential to a successful future in the business world.

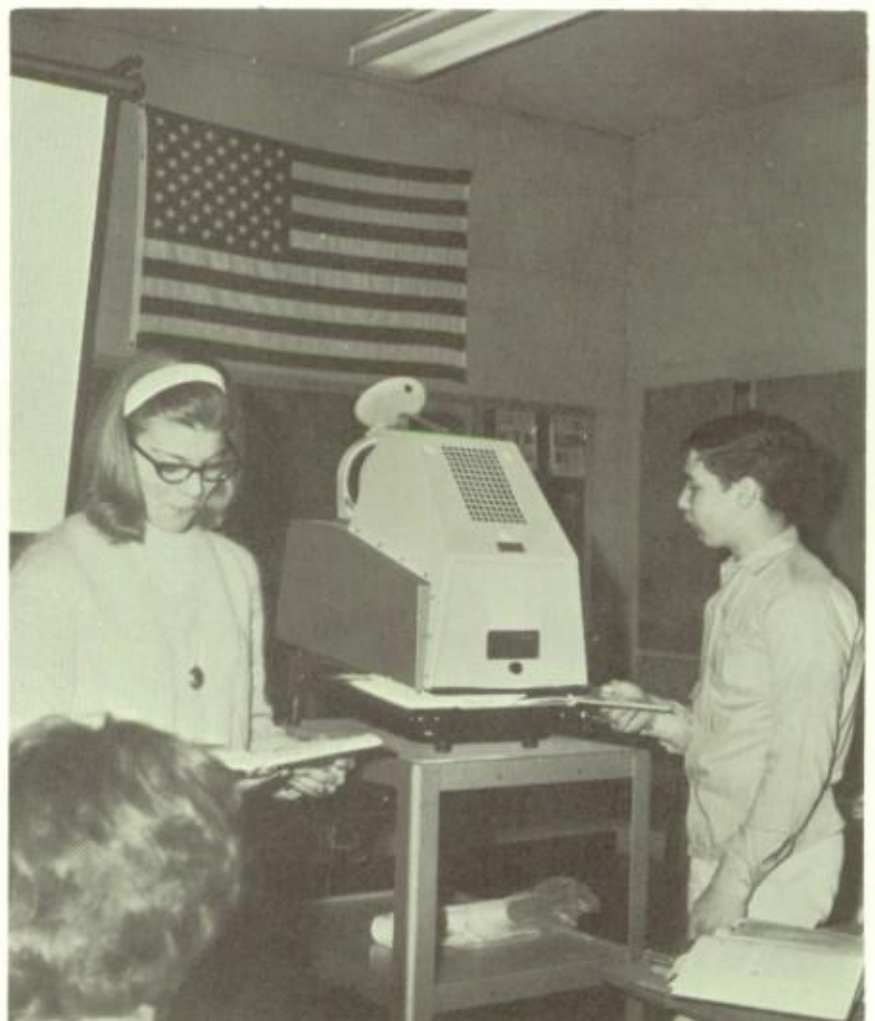

Kay Geist is looking over the many interesting articles that pertain to government.

Studying about the past and the present is the responsibility of the social studies courses that are offered at CHS.

World history is offered to the sophomores to teach them about the development and the past of the world. Juniors and seniors are required to take government and U.S. history. In government they learn about the way our government works. The history classes, aside from studying the past, took a trip to Canada and Detroit, where they went to Greenfield Village.

These courses make us aware of the past and of what can be expected in the future.

past we can predict the future

The seniors are taking their turns voting in the mock election. The three upper classes participated in this project.

English is the American education

Mr. Norman is handing out English tests to the juniors. Mark Hollopeter seems completely stunned by its complexities.

In speech class, Barb Green conducts a meeting according to parliamentary procedures.

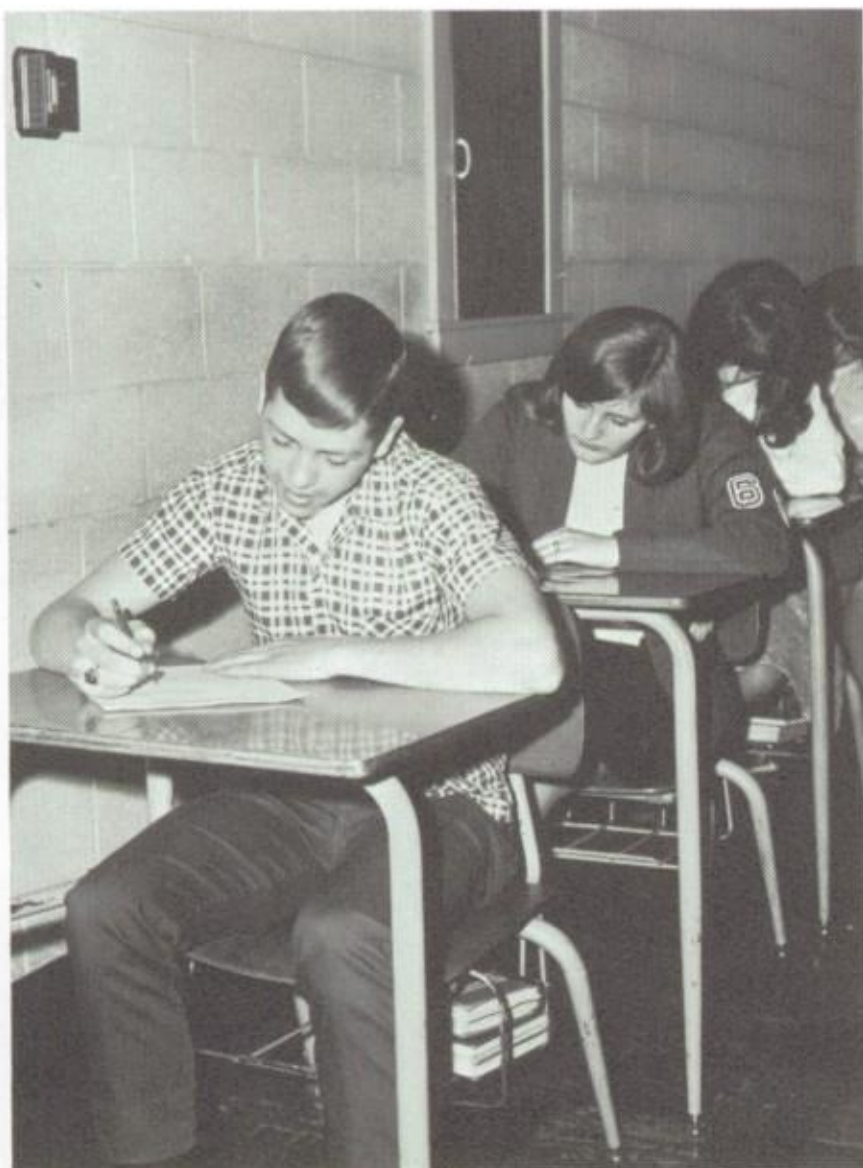

Here we see a lively foursome ready and eager to dig into their remedial reading assignment. Dan Loe, Jim Ross, Martha Short and Wilma Karst are a few of the students trying to improve their reading skills.

basic in preparation for the future

One of the main problems with gaining an education is the fact that you must take tests. These students are now ready to take one of Mr. Norman's English tests.

The English department includes English, speech, literature, and remedial reading.

Each student is required to take three years of English. English grammar is important to the person who wishes to speak correctly.

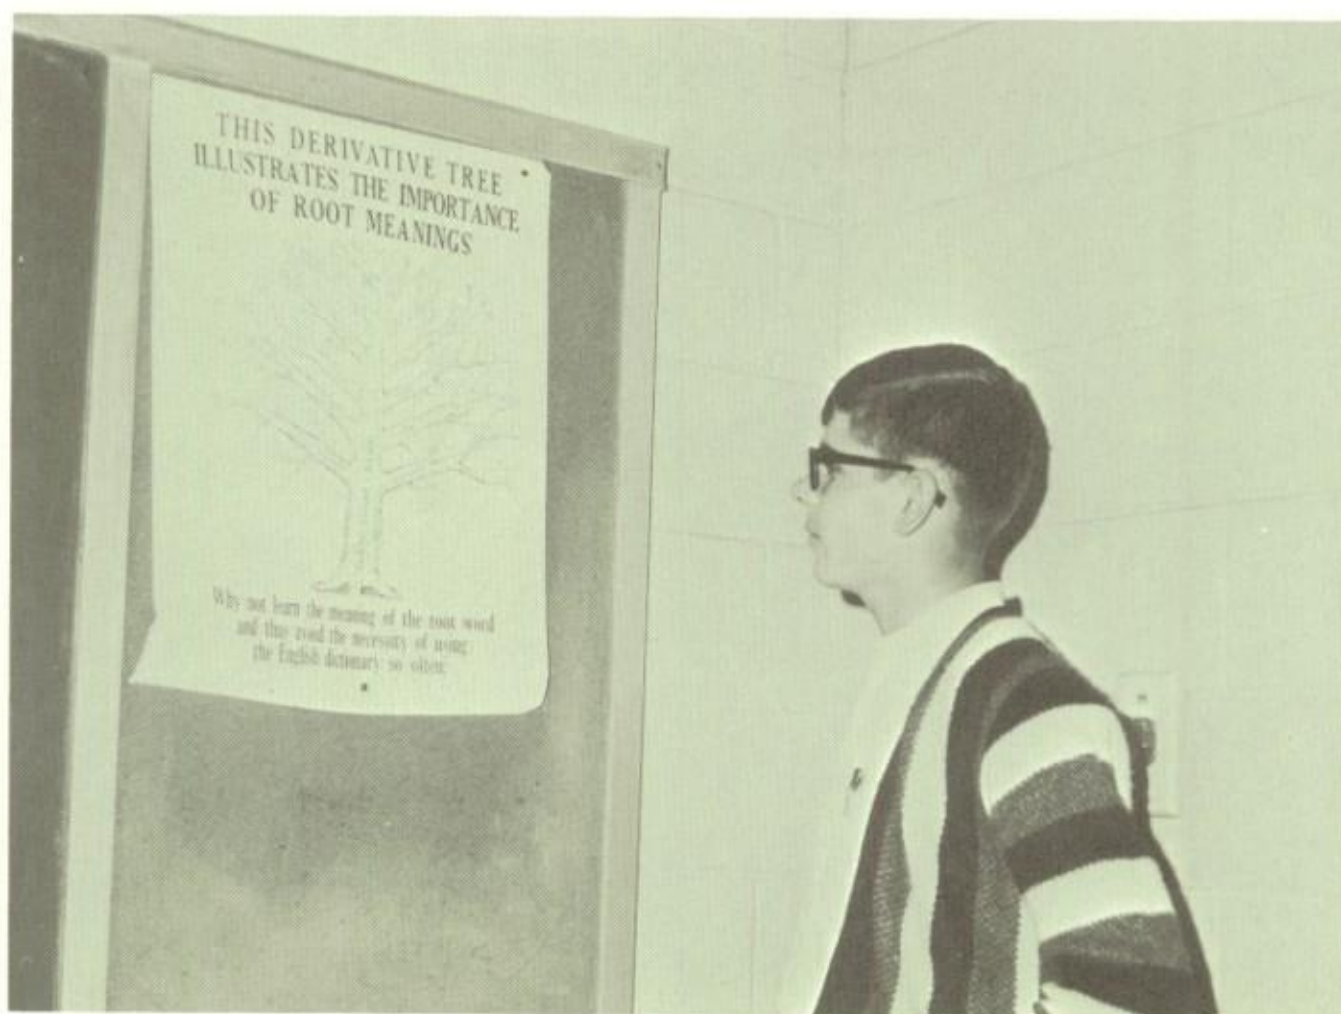

The second semester of English is used for literature. The pupils study such classics as "Great Expectations," "Silas Marner," "Julius Caesar," "Moby Dick," and Emerson's Essays.

Speech is designed for the people who feel that they cannot express themselves. Speech class helps these persons to speak and act with more self-confidence.

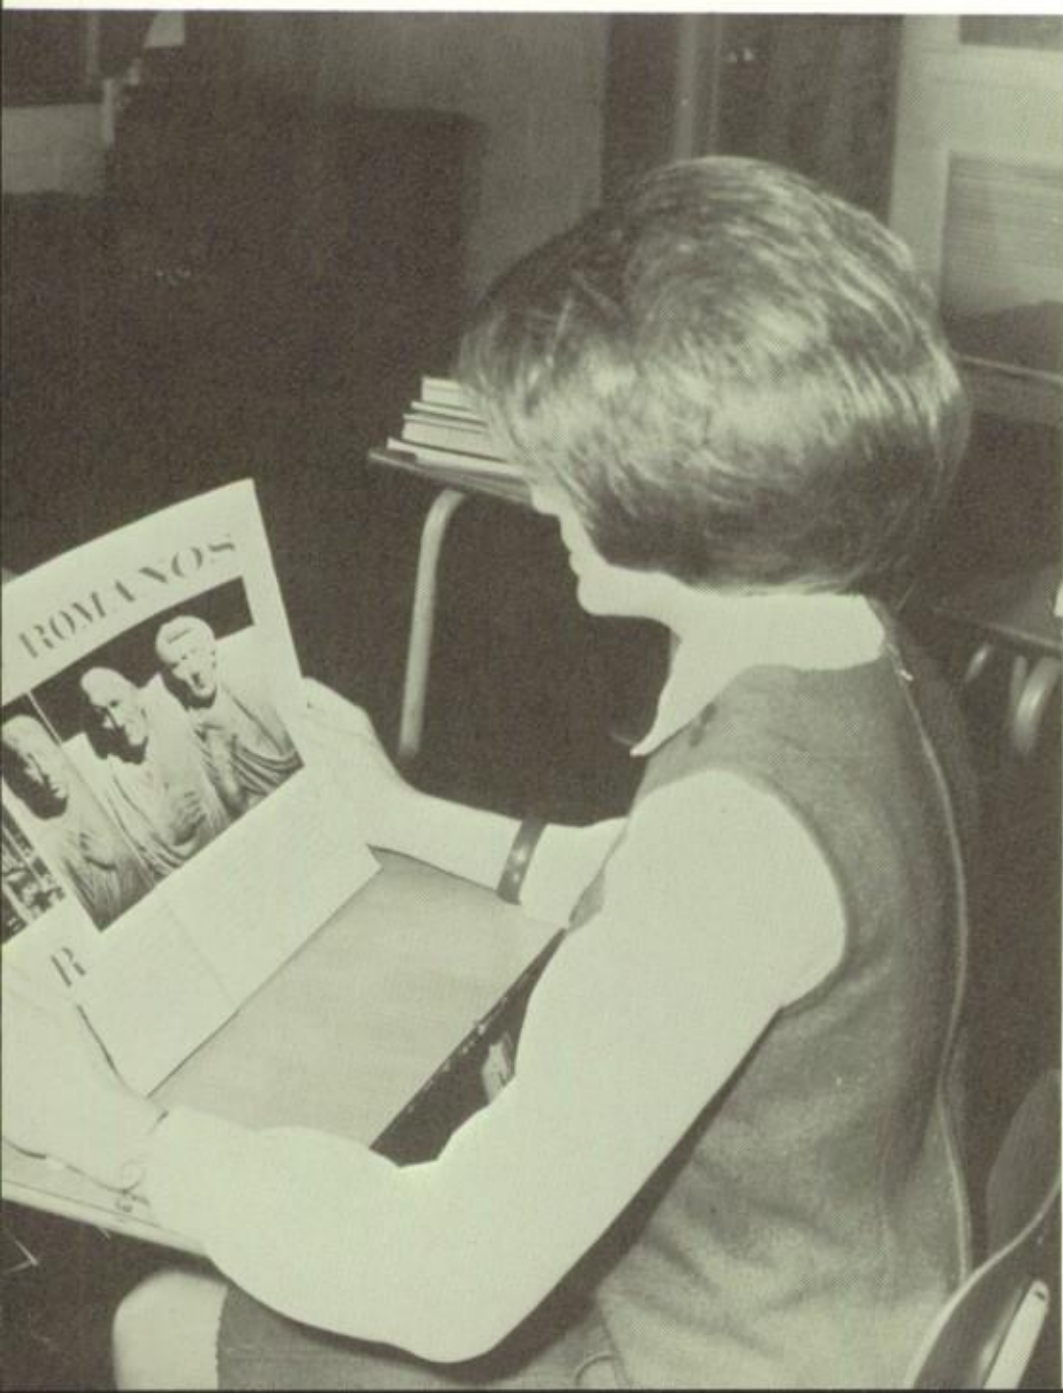

Some C.H.S. students do not have the proper reading skills. These people enroll in remedial reading and work to improve their reading power and vocabulary.

Languages link us with the world

Pat McNeal is studying the Latin root tree in order to improve his pronunciation of words.

Karen Rapp learns about the Spanish by reading an old Spanish magazine.

Conversation has long been one of the most important medias of communication. The language department of C.H.S. offers three years of Spanish and two years of Latin. Latin is studied by future doctors and nurses, along with students who will use it to improve their English. While Latin students translate the Odessey or Julius Caesar, the Spanish students learn the native tongue of Cortez and Simon Bolivar. Through many study aides students are given a general reading and speaking knowledge of Spanish. The study of this modern language helps keep C.H.S. students in touch with the Spanish speaking countries of the world.

Using their many and varied creative talents, the art students turned out some very interesting art objects. New mediums, as well as the standard ones, were worked on. The art students turned scientific long enough to create their own Op-art but returned to the old masters for traditional Christmas pictures. As Mrs. Irby changed a line here, enlightened the color, or added an accent in another spot, her students learned how to channel their abilities and improve their techniques.

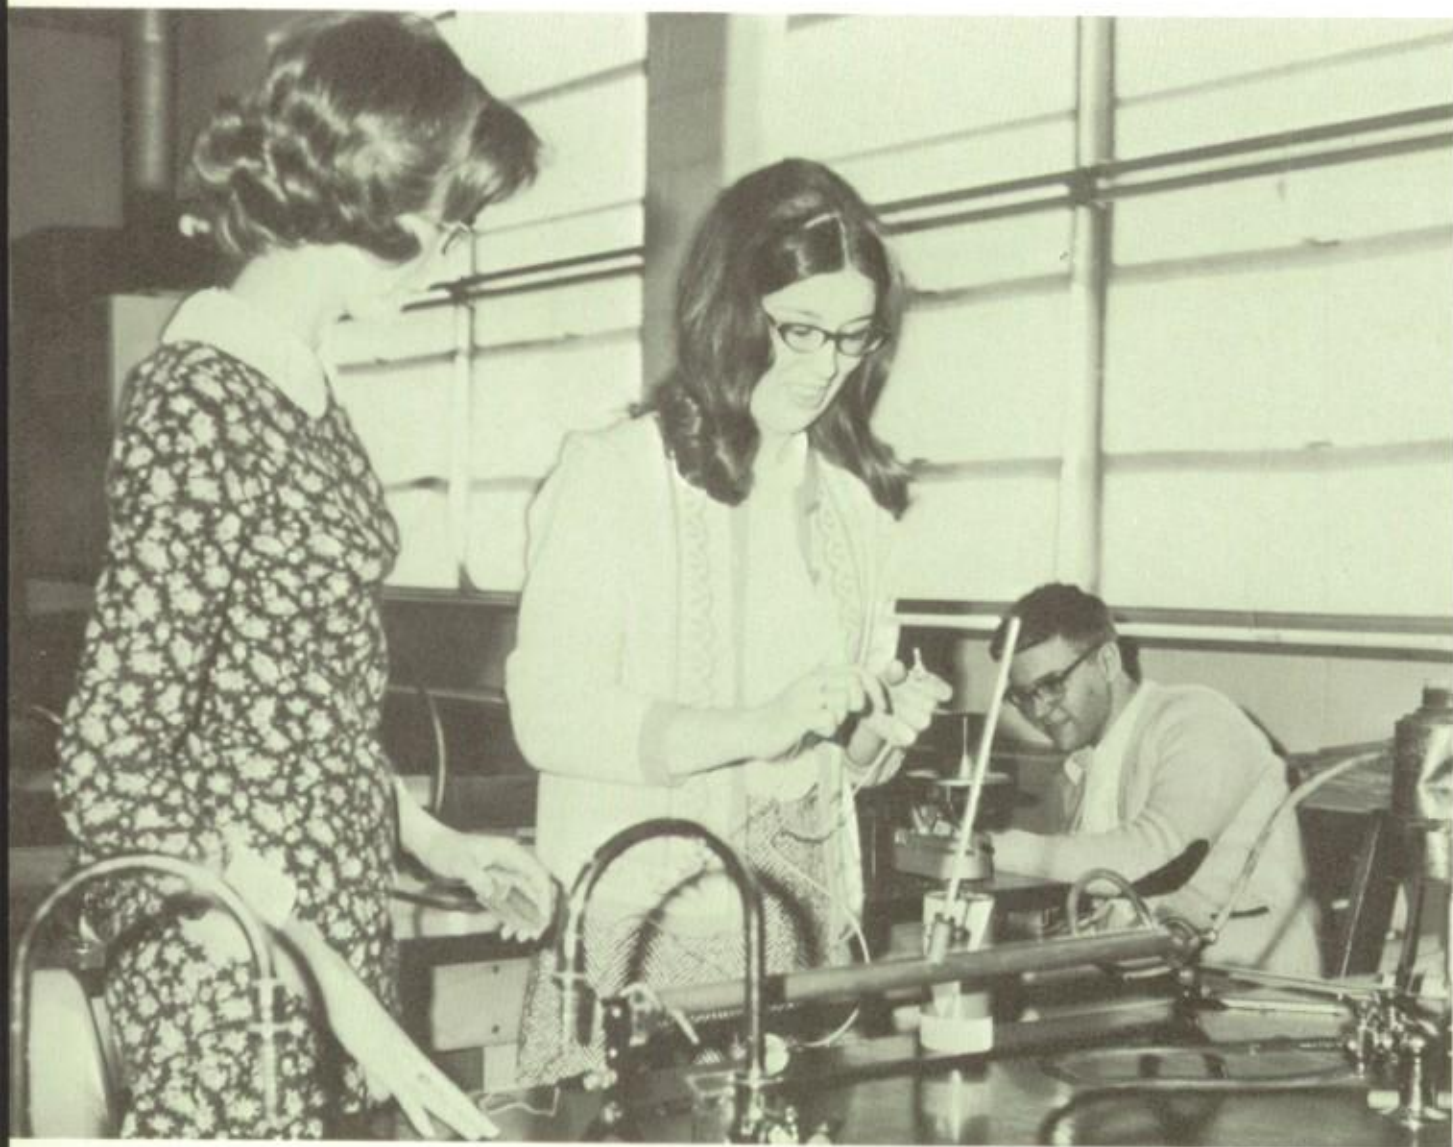

Ron Wilkins shows one of the pictures that was put on display in some of the downtown stores for Christmas.

Art students enter the world of beauty

Peggy Patton and Linda Honeywell work hard on a mosaic picture among the other modern works of art they are taught.

Cheryl Kistler and Peggy Patton are conducting an experiment in physics class. They are testing the linear expansion of metal under heat.

Mathematics and science train youth

Joe Haiflich points out an illustration of one of the harmful habits discussed in sophomore health class.

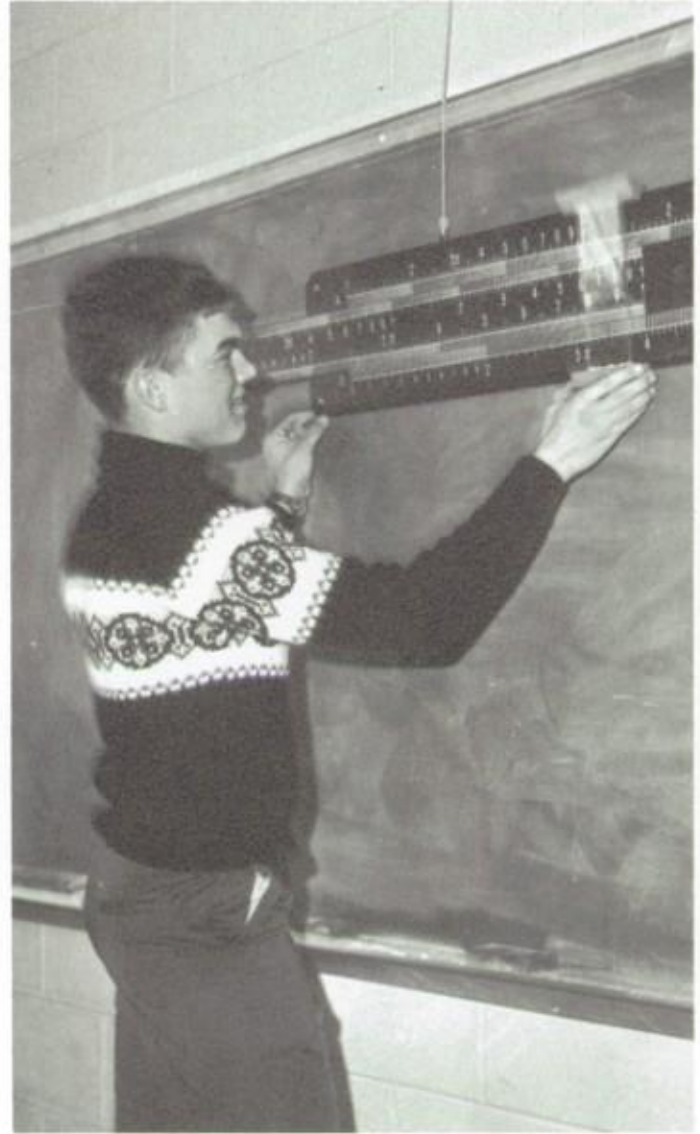

Students in C.H.S.'s science department gained new knowledge and experience this past year. Unlike previous years, advanced biology was offered in the curriculum.

Math students worked hard to prepare for the technological advances the world expects to make. The computer is rapidly becoming a common sight. To operate it we must have math orientated people.

Bonita Romine learns the fundamentals of botany.

Rick Zeedyk, advanced algebra student, shows how to use the slide rule.

for tomorrow's technological world

Advanced biology students examine fungus through their microscopes.

Mr. Arrowsmith watches Danny Bowser as he takes the first step in driver's education.

Industrial arts develop manual skills

The industrial arts curriculum offers shop and mechanical drawing. Shop teaches boys how to use hand and machine tools and then to use these skills in making objects.

First year mechanical drawing students learn to draw isometric and oblique drawings. The drawing of floor plans for a house is one of the basic requirements for advanced students.

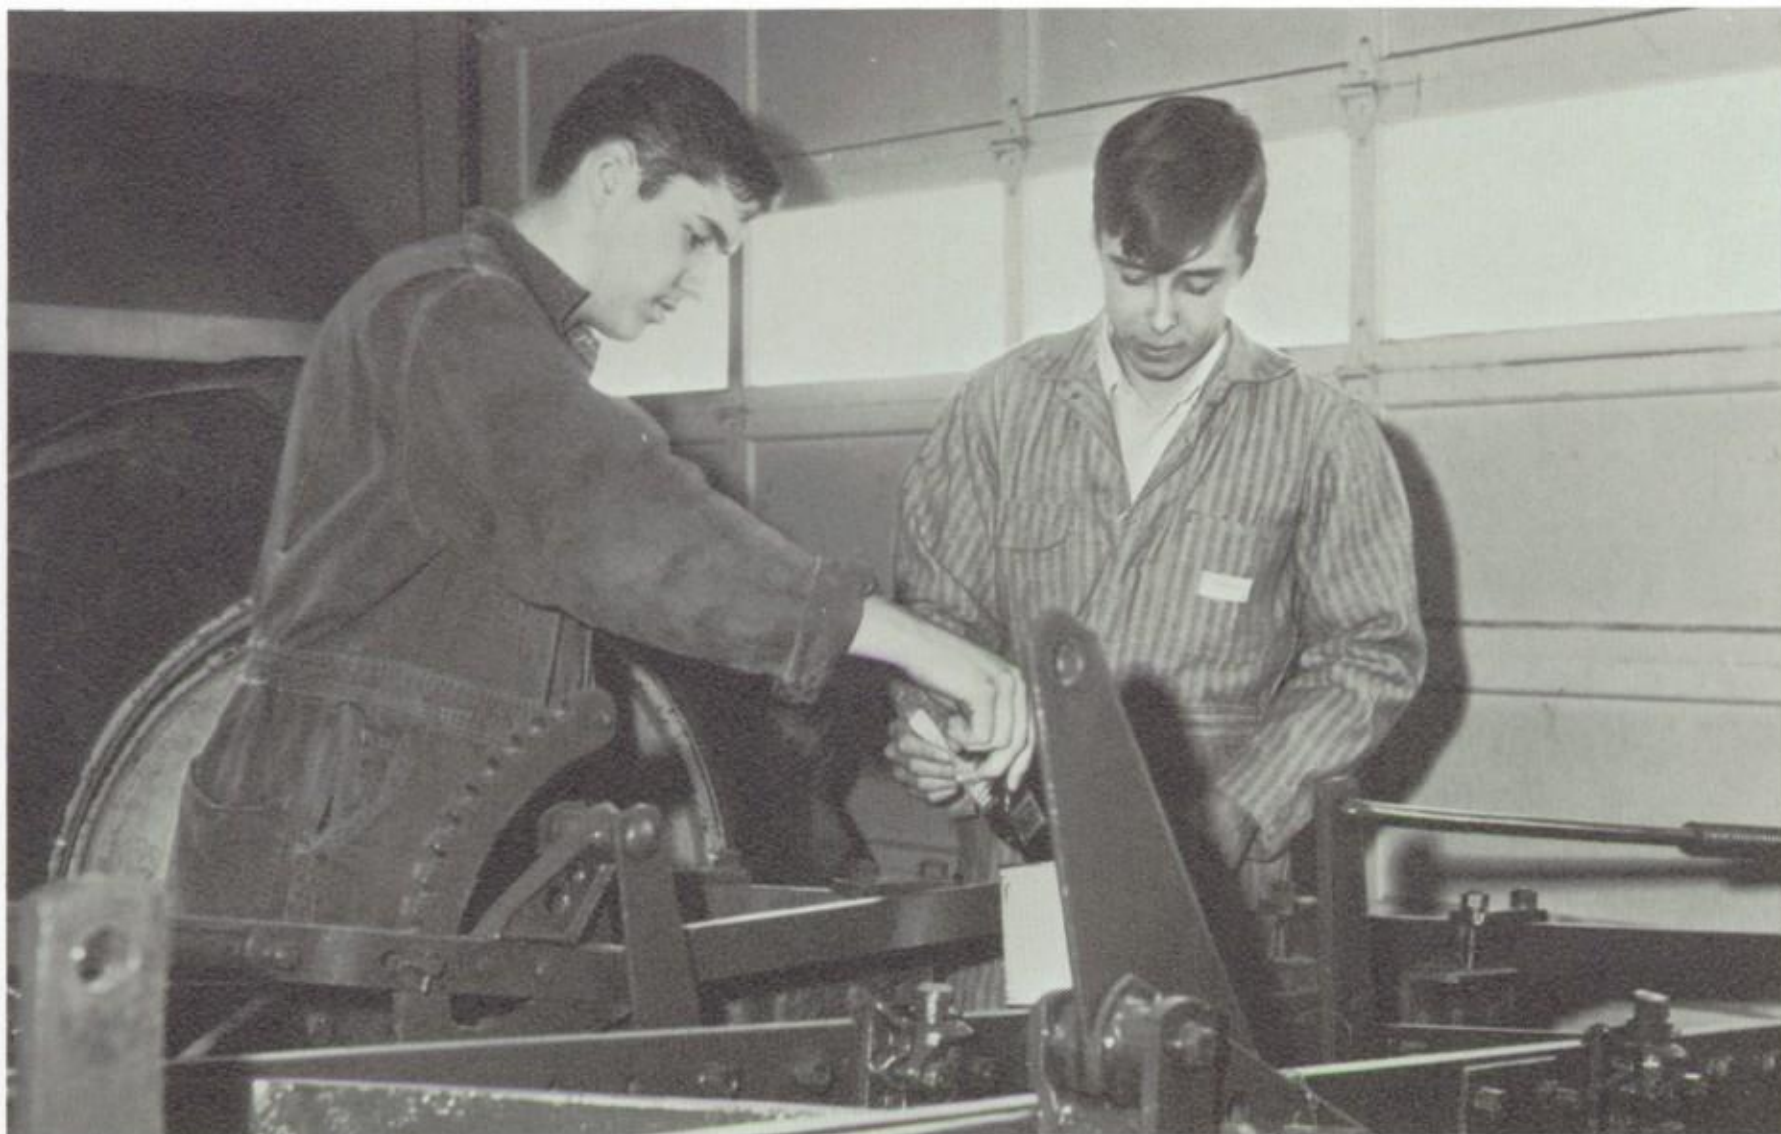

C.H.S.'s summer school offers driver education to students over the age of fifteen. Forty hours of book work and six hours of behind-the-wheel training is required. If the students complete the course satisfactorily, they can receive their license a month after they reach the age of sixteen.

Joe Skinner and Tom Krider are removing the gas tank from a tractor engine in shop class.

Mark Hollopeter concentrates on his drawing for mechanical drawing. Here the students learn the fundamentals of drawing.

Scott Anderson and Steve Linvill are painting a plow to prevent it from rusting. This is one of the many other activities they are taught in agriculture.

Vocational pupils prepare for future

Mary Loe and Jennifer Bockelman look at the meat they prepared in home economics class.

Scientists predict that in the near future homes and farms will be run by computers, but for now, the tasks are performed by humans. CHS students that hope to be future homemakers and farmers are learning the traditional methods as well as preparing to use the ultramodern electronic conveniences of tomorrow.

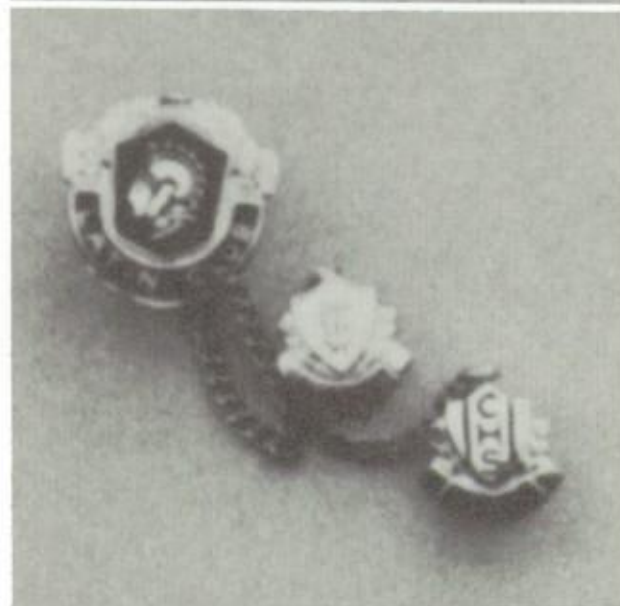

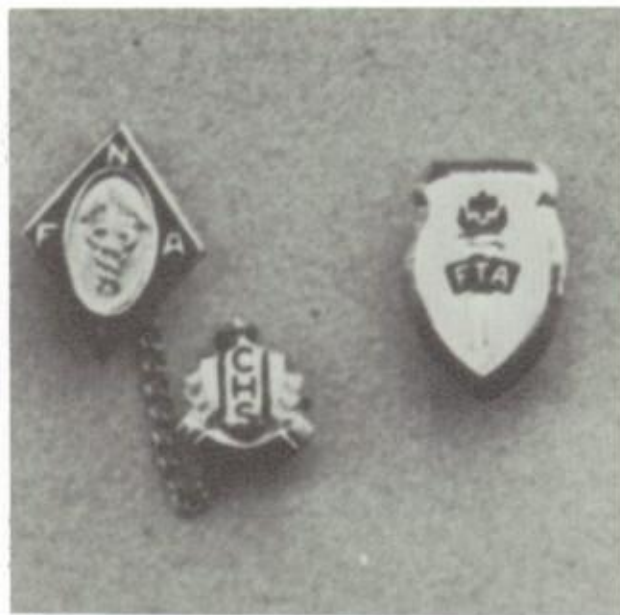

Home economics studies family budgeting, manners, plus cooking, meal planning, sewing, and first aid in the home.

Future farmers have their complicated machinery to comprehend plus the scientific realm of agriculture. The nutrition of the future generations depends upon these young men who will have to grow enough food for the already overcrowded world and all the upcoming generations.

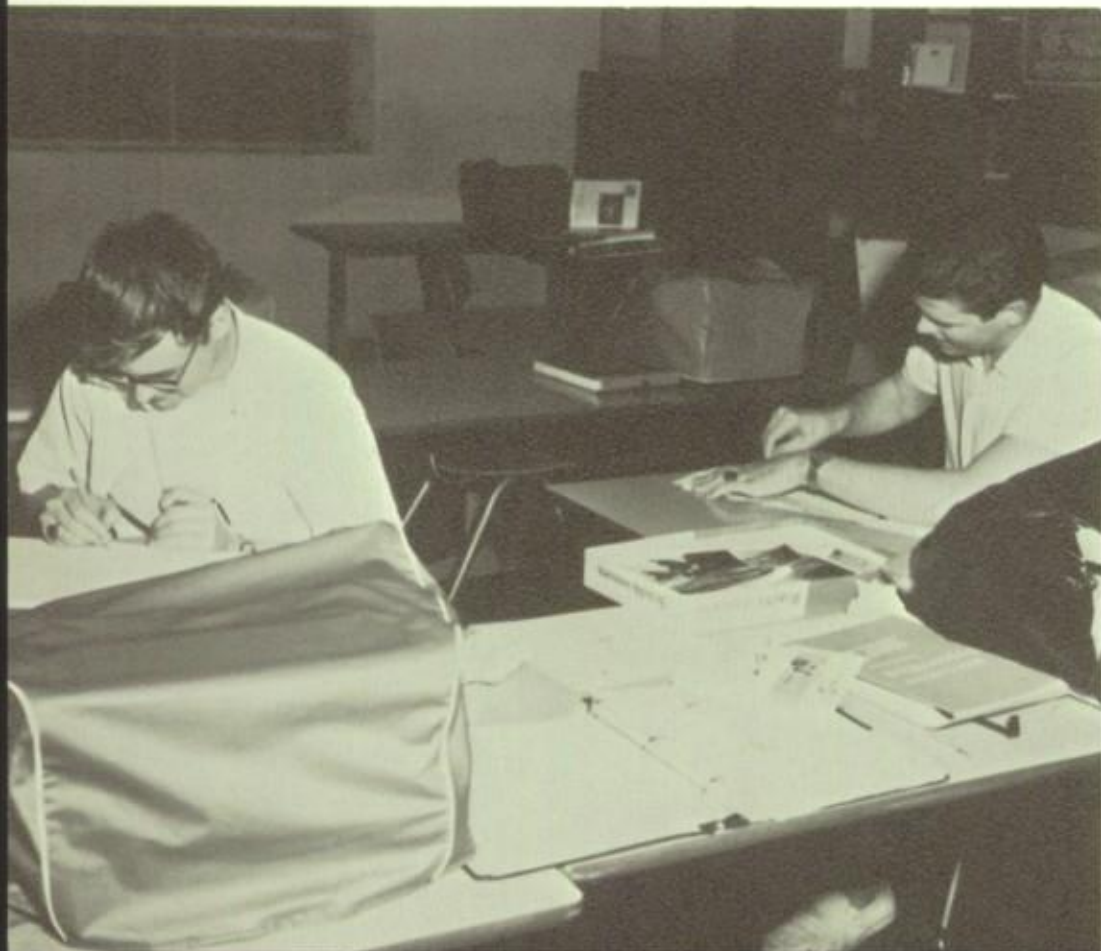

VIA TO ACTIVITIES . . .

Vickie McNeal, business manager, enjoys throwing the advertising money about.

Lynn Gross and Mark Hollopeter designed the many pages of the yearbook.

Rick McDowell, Penny Lamle, and Peggy Patton spent many hours proofreading copy sheets to complete each deadline.

The yearbook staff worked

"How many spaces for this headline?" was an often heard plea as the staff members worked long hours on writing copy, typing, and creating layout.

Mr. Nathan Baker gave his time and knowledge to help the yearbook staff produce "The Year of the Flight."

The Tusitala's editor, Charlene Woll, attended High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University Campus to learn answers to the many problems that occurred.

Vickie McNeal, the business manager, managed the budget, solicited contributions, and typed business letters willingly and skillfully.

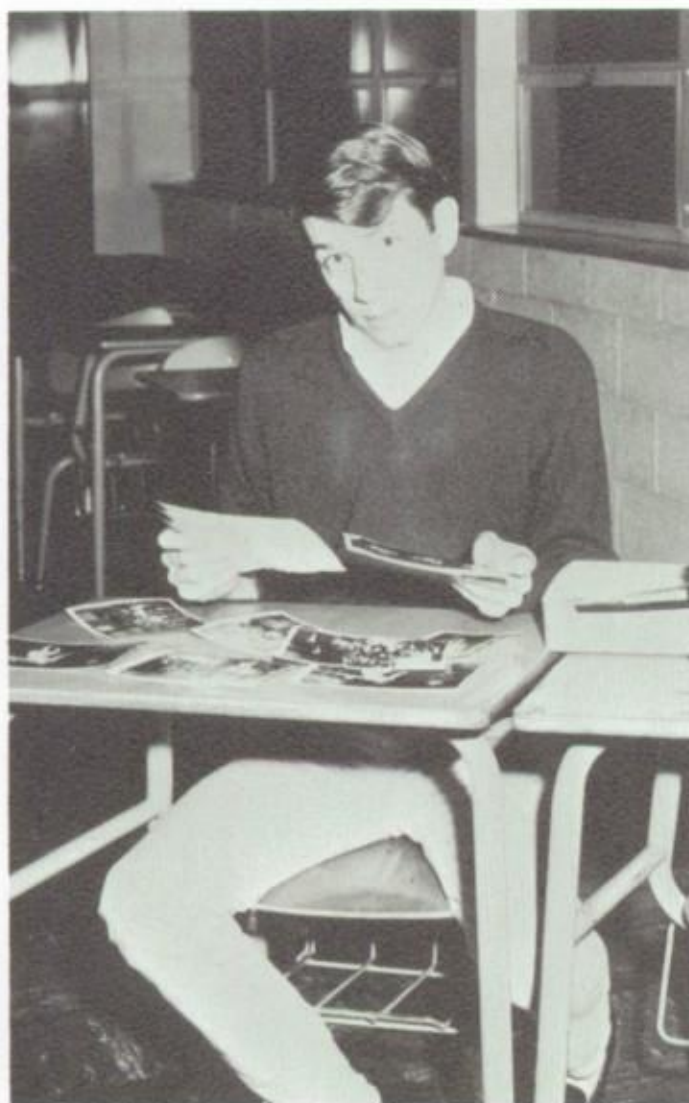

Linda Honeywell put in many hours as she typed copy for the yearbook.

Through the efforts of the school, staff, and the sponsor, another successful Tusitala yearbook was edited.

Mr. Nathan Baker, sponsor, and Charlene Woll, editor, worked very hard to prepare "The Year of the Flight" as the 1967 Tusitala.

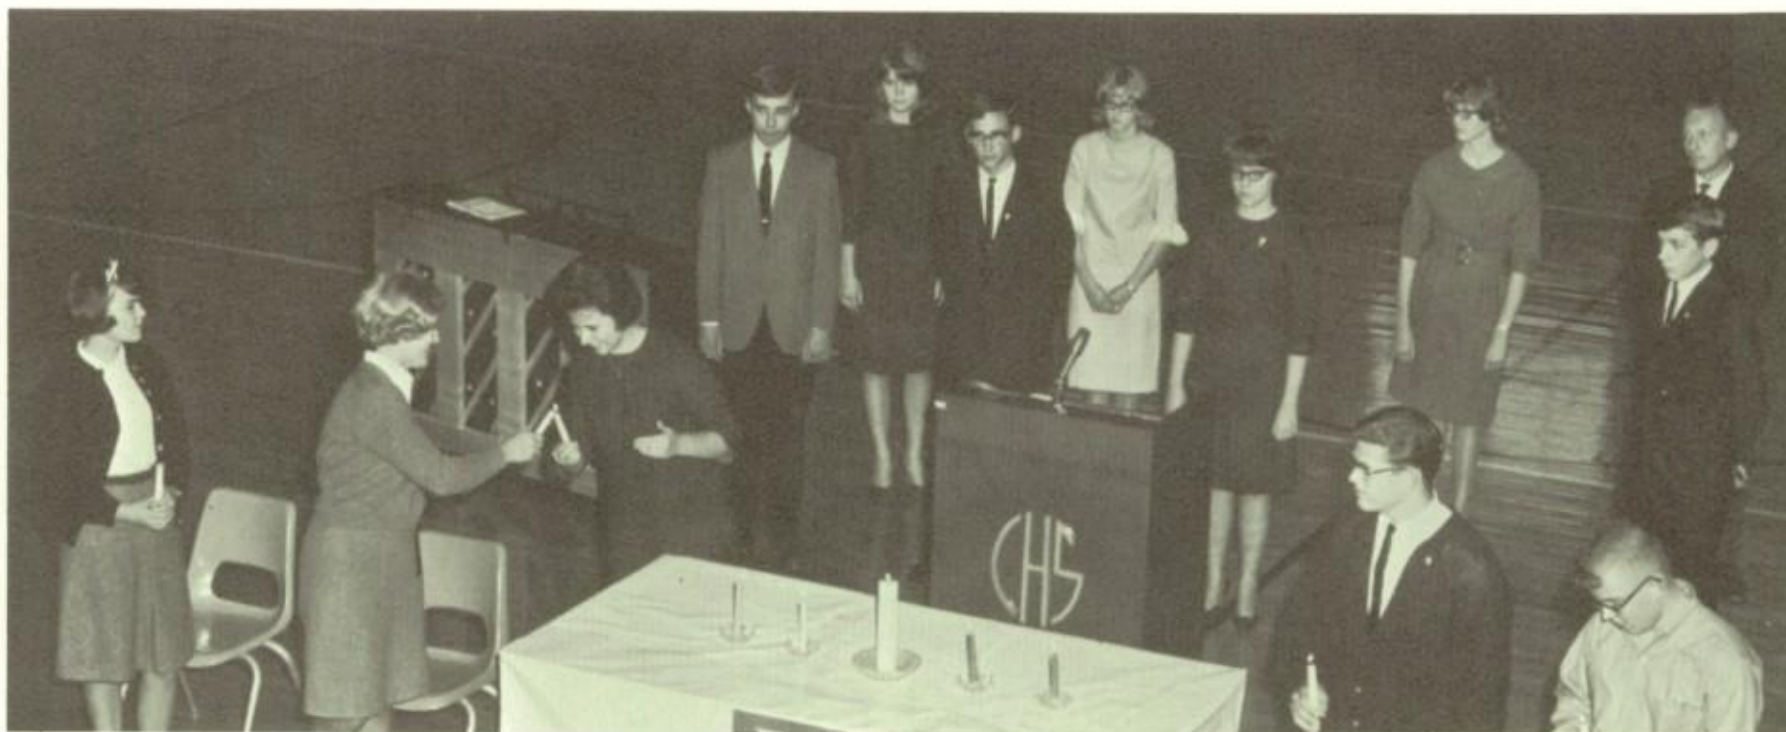

hours to create the 1967 TUSITALA

Dave McEowen gained much experience during his high school years by being the yearbook photographer.

Ginny Schwaberow, Robin Allman, and Marcella Fleetwood contributed much to the yearbook with their talented writing.

Four new students are honored by being selected for the National Honor Society.

NHS provides high honor at CHS

Mark Hollopeter, Gregg Baker, Barb Green, Mr. Richey, Dave McEowen, Steve Linvill, Charlene Woll, Vickie McNeal, Cheryl Kistler, Vickee Herron, Vickie Boggs, and Rick McDowell.

Four juniors received the torches of leadership, scholarship, character, and service as the student body looked on. These qualities, plus a "B" average or better, are what goes into the making of a National Honor Society member. From those eligible, the faculty chooses those to be inducted. National Honor Society election is the highest honor that a student can receive at CHS.

This is the fourth year of the local Churubusco Chapter.

The Student Council erected a flag pole on the football field. This was done on several Saturday mornings and required quite a lot of effort, but the results were appreciated by everyone.

Accent on progressing Student Council

The Student Council consists of three representatives from each high school class and the presidents of the seventh and eighth grade classes.

One of the main objectives of the Student Council is to inform the student body of what goes on in the meetings and allow the students to express their view points. This has been done by reporting over the P.A. system following the meeting and also having the first open Student Council meeting. This also was the first year for an elected Student Council president.

Among the many projects, a school ring was presented and a spirit stick was introduced to create more school spirit.

Tattler aids school communications

The TATTLER, the school newspaper, is produced monthly by office-practice class. News of club activities, editorials, jokes, class news and coming events appear in the paper. Writing copy, proof-reading and preparing lay-outs provide valuable experience to those students interested in journalistic work.

Linda Honeywell, Kay Diffendarfer, Carolyn Geiger, and Nancy Renkenberger do one of the many jobs involved in preparing the TATTLER for printing.

FTA sponsors exploratory teachers

Charlene Woll helps one of her first grade pupils with his schoolwork. She learns that being a student teacher is very beneficial.

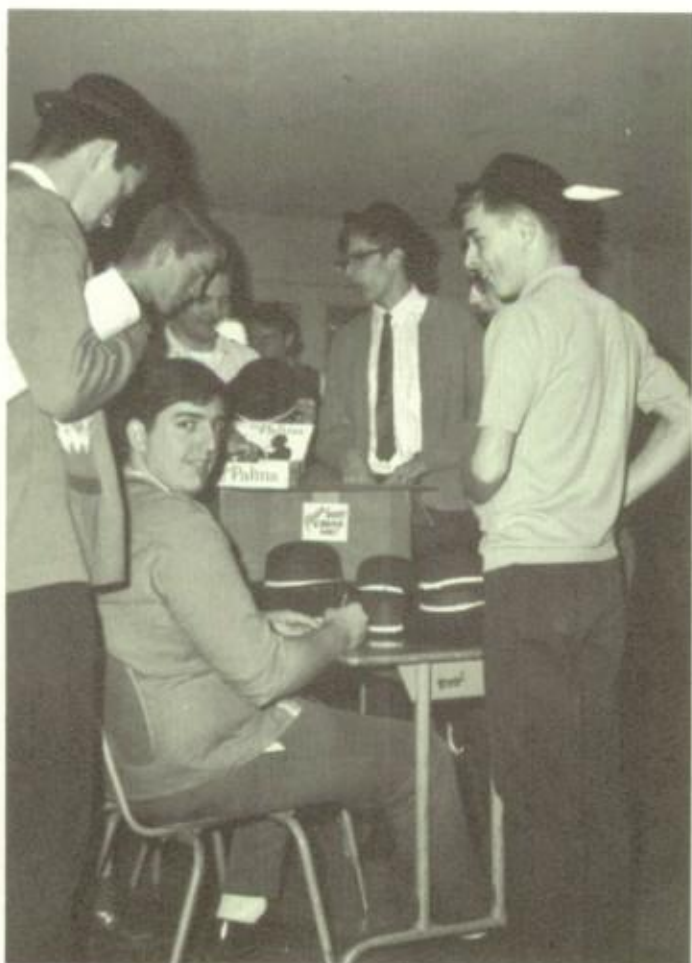

F.T.A. is sponsored by Mr. Richey and is a club designed for students interested in the teaching profession. By being in this club students are able to become more familiar with what teaching actually is. Among other activities this year, F.T.A. is sponsoring a program in which students are given an opportunity to teach a class of their choice for one week.

This is the first year for exploratory teaching. They choose the teacher of their choice and assist one hour a day during the week. Students get credit for this and use one of their regular classes. There are nine students taking this course.

Victorettes fly high and far to many

The CHS Cheerblock began a new season with a new name, a bigger than ever membership, and some new ideas. The Victorettes backed their team with the use of spell-outs at home basketball games and incited enthusiasm among themselves by incorporating a point system. The male section of the cheerblock added a more spirited tone to the Victorettes' sound, and their black hats and white shirts gave snap to the Victorettes' appearance.

The boys cheerblock bought and wore their black bowler hats with the usual CHS pride.

Latin is a basis for modern languages

One of the Latin Club activities was making posters for Latin Week. Pam Weinberg, Dawn Ayers, and Mary Lou Merrill are working on their posters.

The Latin Club is for those students who are taking Latin or have taken Latin in previous years, and want to further their knowledge of the Romans and their customs. It also furthers the students' understanding of English and other languages. It is sponsored by Mr. Williams. The members learn about the life of the Romans through movies and other sources. Among the activities a party was sponsored by the Latin Club.

The Spanish Club is for Spanish students interested in the cultural aspects of the Spanish speaking countries.

The club sponsored a party for all Spanish Club members. Prizes were given for Bingo, a piñata was broken, and pizza was served.

A film entitled "Mexico City," was shown to the members.

The club is sponsored by Mr. Nathan Baker, the high school Spanish teacher.

These talented girls made a piñata, which was broken at the Spanish Club party.

Linda Owen and Joan Krider inspect copies of the cookbooks, which the FHA sold as a project.

FHA teaches girls the responsibilities of being a homemaker and also how they can become better homemakers in the future. It is sponsored by Miss Rathjen. Among the money making projects was the selling of popcorn at the home basketball games. Other projects were bake sales, skating parties, and the sponsoring of dances. This year the girls received FHA charm bracelets. Each year the senior girls receive blazers for being in FHA four years.

FFA strives to become better farmers

Danny Bowser, Bob Bennett, Dale Hilliard, Scott Anderson, Richard Sutton, Mike Geist, and Mike Nunchuck are greenhand initiates of FFA.

FFA gives opportunities to many of the boys interested in farming as a career. They learn through contests and by the leadership of the club how to better their community. Mr. Paxson is the sponsor of the organization. Each year they hold a district meeting to see who goes to state district. The new members receive jackets for doing their required duties.

Earlene Clouse is one of the GAA members who enjoyed the diving board at the Y.W.C.A.

GAA participates in varied sports

Debbie Eyer, Marcia McEowen, and Linda Dafforn are three of the girls who bowled so enthusiastically every week.

Eighty-eight members of the Girls' Athletic Association, under the leadership of Mrs. Snyder, met every Wednesday after school for different activities. The girls enjoyed bowling, swimming, and playing volleyball. A volleyball tourney was held in the spring. The girls learned, while having a good time, cooperation and teamwork. The officers were as follows: Mary Lucas, president; Kay Diffendarfer, vice-president; Penny Lamle, secretary-treasurer.

Science and Math enthusiasts made an effort this year to research their own individual interests. This year, each student was required to do a project. This enabled each member to further explore his own interests. Interesting reports on projects and other topics highlighted the monthly meetings.

Future Nurses Club gains momentum

The Future Nurses Club, one of the newer activities at C.H.S., gained momentum and members this year. The club, in order to add to its treasury, sponsored bake sales and a dance, which were both big successes. The girls gained insight into their future profession when they visited Westville and the State School. Various films and speakers helped the girls choose the branch of the nursing profession in which they were most interested.

Vickie McNeal introduced Sergeant Hansen of the U.S. Army who spoke to the Future Nurses Club about the opportunities for nurses in the armed forces.

Campus life gives guidance to youth

Campus Life Meetings were changed from Tuesday noons to Tuesday evenings.

The programs featured such themes as "The Dating Game," "The Newly Steads," and "Let's Make a Deal."

Bonnie Gaff chose Steve King and Steve Linvill chose Linda Koomler in the "Dating Game" series. They were given steak dinners and a 1967 Mustang to drive to a Campus Life rally at the Fort Wayne Bible College.

Ken Gaff and Janet Plummer won the look-alike shirts on the "Newly Steads Game." They, too, were given a free date.

The Planning Committee worked hard on planning the programs. They met in the back of Pat's Cafe after school. Mr. Steve Sprunger, the sponsor, guided the Planning Committee and put in many long hours.

One of the more successful Campus Life Programs was the Newly Steads. Steadies, Janet Plummer and Ken Gaff, received the best score and are shown opening their prizes.

The CHS Chorus spent its time in practicing for numerous showings. The Christmas cantata, concerts, and contest were their major engagements. The chorus practiced Tuesday and Thursday during Activity Period under the direction of Harold Long.

It elected the following officers: Dave McEowen, president; Rick McDowell, vice-president; and Dennis Clouse, secretary-treasurer.

During the year Vickee Herron and Susan Nunchuck did very well in accompanying the chorus on piano and organ.

made up an exciting year for the band

Gold blazers, replacing the grey uniforms, and a point system for awards were "in" for the eighty-five member marching and contest band of C.H.S.

Unlike previous years the band did not march for basketball games but devoted most of its time to preparation for contest. The twirlers provided the half-time entertainment for ballgames.

A clarinet quartet consisting of Vickie McNeal, Annie Gaff, Kay Diffendarfer, and Nancy Long went to State Vocal and Instrumental contest for the second year in a row. Although they received a second, the honor and experience was very rewarding.

Three students, Vickie McNeal, Gerald LaRue, and Dave McEowen, were chosen to perform in the Purdue "All Star" High School Band. This is a sight reading clinic and the band plays the music that will be popular in band contests in future years.

Mr. Long measures Bill Fogle for the new band blazers purchased by the music Parents Association.

Varsity basketball team advance to

Bailey, Terry Lang, Mike Adams, John Bonar, Stan Schenher,

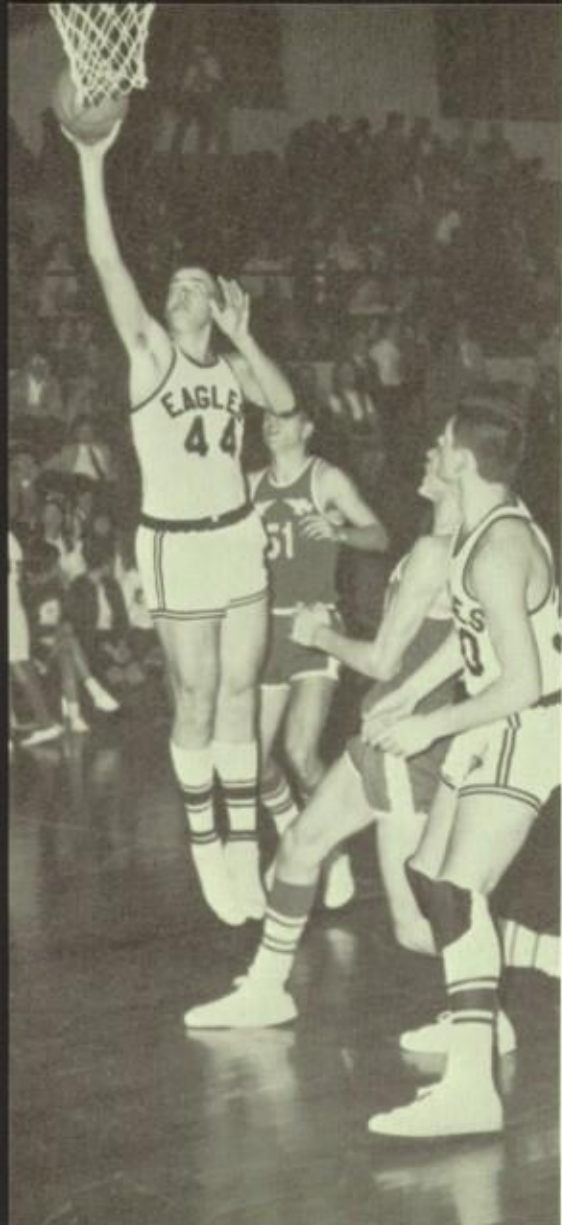

Hopes were high as the student body, parents included, looked forward to the 1966-67 varsity basketball season. The team was believed to have a high potential and spirits were high.

The season opener was lost to South Whitley by a slim margin, but the Eagles came back to trounce Angola. It was back and forth for the first six games with three wins and three losses. They continued to fight hard against increasingly rough competition and ended up with a 7-14 record. The Eagles, however, showed their enthusiasm by defeating Arcola in the ACAC tourney and advancing to the semi-finals for the first time in CHS history.

The student body thanks the team for putting forth the time and effort and congratulates the Eagles for their good representation of CHS.

Gridiron squad

The year 1966 was a year of much gain in experience for Busco's varsity football team. Only one offensive starter and one defensive starter returned from last year's team. The team had a bad start at Lakeland where they lost the game due to many mistakes and much nervousness. Also, in this game a trend of injuries began with a fractured collarbone on Mark Hollopeter. The team learned quickly, however, and came back to win the next two games. The rest of the season was divided with two more wins, two losses, and a tie with Hicksville.

The boys dig in as a team to give a hard block to the new seven-man sled.

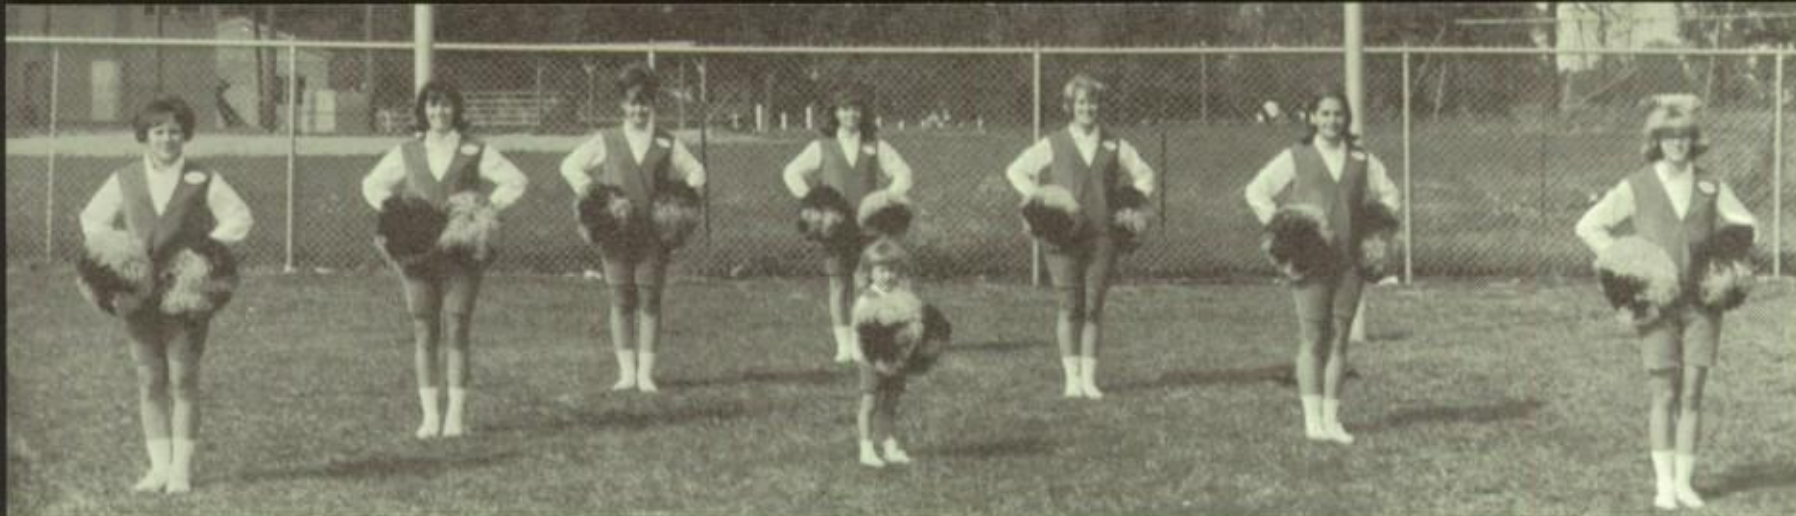

Steve Targgart moves to block out two tacklers while Roger Crooks, pouring on the steam, rounds the end.

Cheerleaders: Terri Maggert, Jenny Gaff, Linda Konger, Vickee Herron, Barbara Green, Kathy Amber, Vickie Boggs, Tami Green, center.

Gridiron boasts first winning season

A 4-3-1 record put the team over the .500 mark. This was the first winning football season in the school's history. The boys should be very proud of this record. Also, the prospects for next year's team look very good with the return of a large number of lettermen.

Golf squad drives to gain experience

The golf squad gained much experience this year. Duncan's Golf Course was the scene for many after school practices.

Mr. Richey gave of his time and knowledge to coach the squad.

This was the fourth year for golf at CHS. Competition was keener as interest in the squad increased.

Max Parker concentrates very hard as he tries to putt his ball in at the first try.

Assistant Coach Bob Fisher, Stan Schenher, Rex Fletcher, Danny Ferguson, George Blackburn, Ernie Pyle, Coach Jacob Delagrange.

Diamond team posts seven victories

The team sharpens their batting eye during practice before a game.

The C.H.S. baseball team showed an improved season by winning seven games. Roger Crooks produced some very good pitching. Ernie Pyle was tops in batting with a .327 average. The season was highlighted with a 3 to 2 win over Hometown in an errorless game.

The Eagle team repeated as champs in the Busco, Goshen, and Daleville Invitationals, as they won out over 109 teams during the season. The Eagles were ACAC champs again with a perfect record and placed fourth in two large school meets, the South Side Invitational and the Indianapolis Invitational.

In the sectional the team finished third to qualify for the regional, the first time for our school. We were among the final forty teams in the state. Ace, Tim Wilkins, finished second in the sectional, fourth in the regional, and sixteenth in the state to pace the team. The top five runners were Wilkins, Fletcher, Friskney, Ferguson, and Linvill.

Tim Wilkins shows much strain and fortitude as he leads the Eagles to another victory.

Track upheld a very excellent record

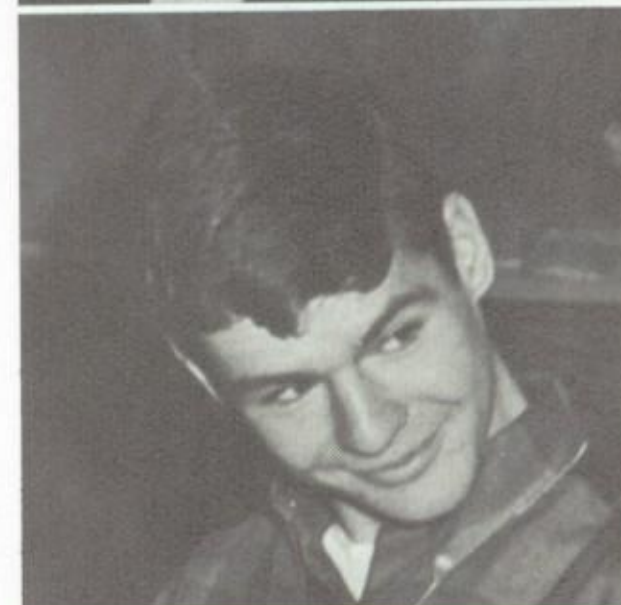

The track team continued its tradition of excellence and established new track and field records. The team traveled far and wide and performed on many different tracks. With the skilled powers of the track veterans and the fresh new talent from the freshman, the team boasted their season. Outstanding performers were Tim Wilkins in the mile, Rex Fletcher in the 220, Mike Adams in the hurdles, Ken Gaff in the 2 miles, and Ron Wilkins in the half mile. The team showed up reasonably well at the ACAC and placed third.

Russ Swing is relieved as his final attempt at the pole vault is successful.

VIA TO PERSONALITIES . . .

Mrs. Smith, superintendent's secretary, gives of her talents to help the office run smoothly.

Mr. Jason Smith, Superintendent of the Smith-Green Community School System, guides the administration.

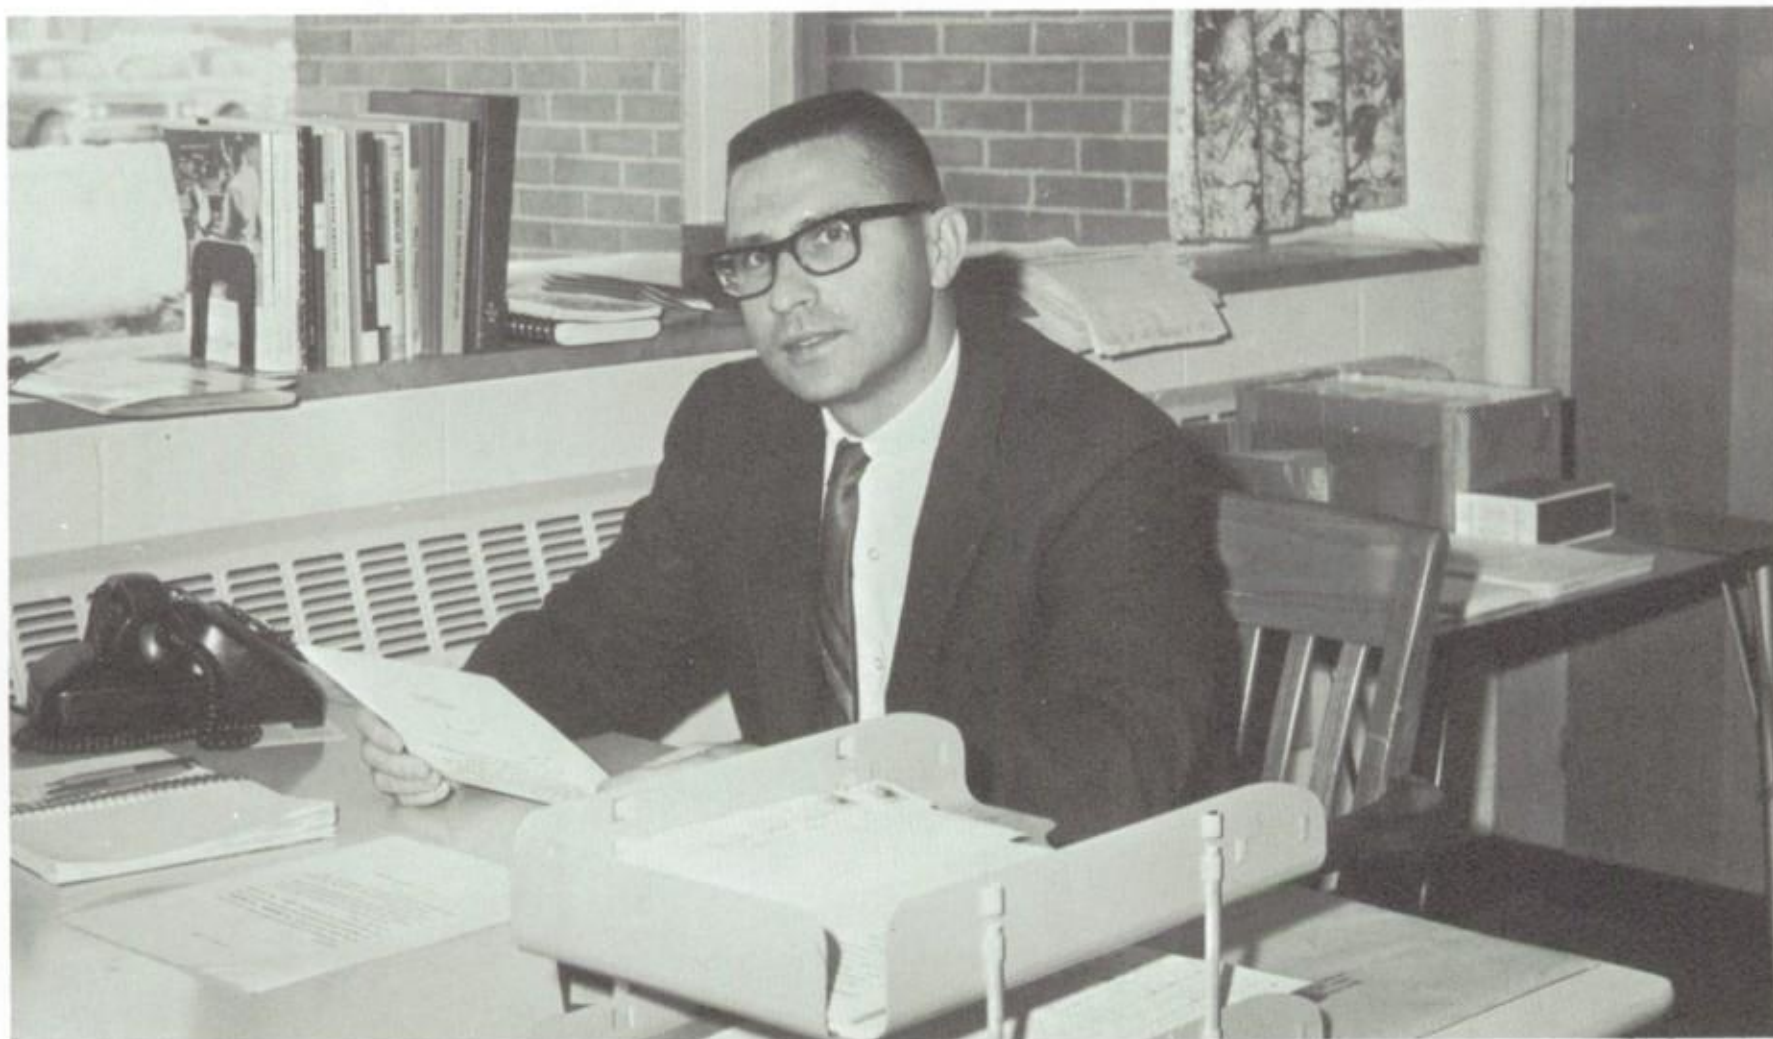

Board members represent taxpayers

The administration consists of the school board and the superintendent. The board is elected by the taxpayers and the superintendent is hired by the board. The board and the superintendent, along with the principal, work to improve the school. The year of 1967 saw the completion of four junior high rooms, restroom facilities, and two self-contained kindergarten rooms.

The school board members were as follows: Everett Jones, president; Walter Linvill, first vice-president; Robert Johnson, second vice-president; Clarence Resler, secretary; Lester Sheets, treasurer. These men made the decisions about school administration.

The office leads us through the year

Mr. Baker is caught here going about one of his many duties as principal.

Without Phyllis to help out, many of us would not be able to survive the week.

When the principal's position at C.H.S. became vacant, Mr. Rex G. Baker was promoted to fill the post. Some of his duties as principal are to prepare the class schedule, making sure that students enroll in the right classes, seeing that the school rules are enforced and serving as a link between the school board and the school body.

Mrs. Phyllis Zolman, the school secretary, has been a great help to Mr. Baker in making the change from teacher to principal. Mrs. Zolman takes care of most of the office tasks, all the while keeping a soft voice and sweet smile.

Teacher aides, such as Mrs. Arrowsmith, are a real help to busy teachers. They do all sorts of little jobs that would consume a teacher's valuable time.

Another job performed by teacher aides, being filled by Mrs. Paxson, is supervision of study halls.

School is like a clock, each small

Florence Nunchuck, Lucille Fudge, Helen Pounds, Lena Fulk, Naoma Gaff, and Nola Caley.

At one time a teacher in a red brick, one room schoolhouse had to build fires, wash blackboards, carry water, and sweep the classrooms. They had more free time and fewer students than the teachers of today who possibly have one hundred twenty students a day and sponsor at least one extra-curricular activity. Now there are teacher aides, cooks, janitors, and bus drivers who help relieve the teacher's load and enable him to pursue his main objectives of educating and preparing boys and girls to become well-rounded individuals.

Teacher aides serve as Girl Fridays by taking care of many odds and ends that might normally be left undone.

The students of C.H.S., typical of most teens, are not yet the neatest people in the world; so, the janitors, working sometimes until early morning, keep the school clean and sanitary.

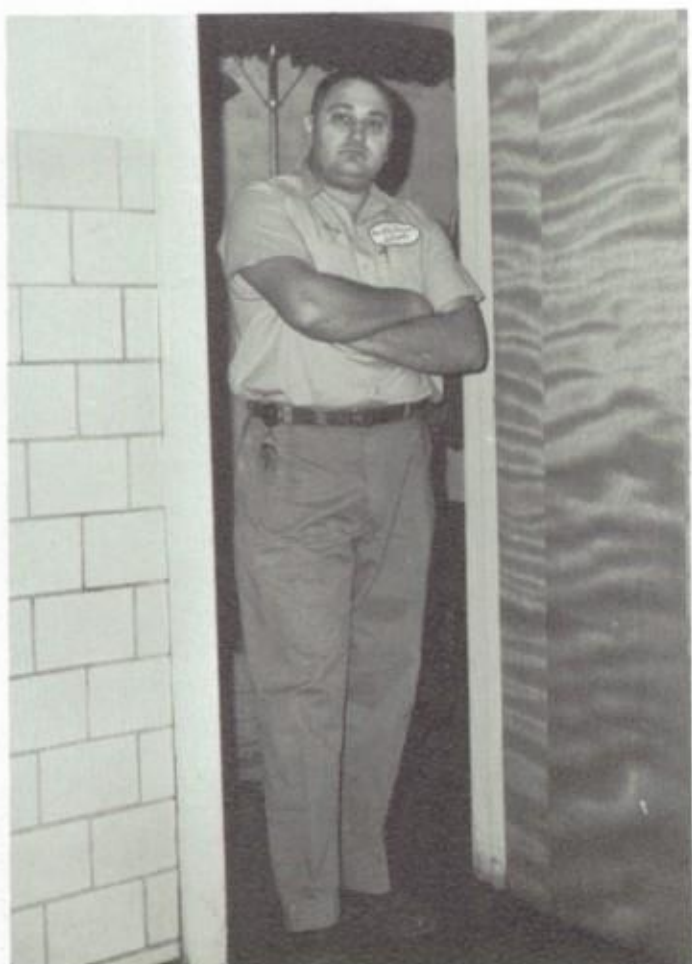

Even though buses may run out of gas, have mechanical difficulties, and run three minutes to one hour late, they enable rural youth to receive education.

No longer do students have to carry a cold lunch. The hot lunch program, now in its tenth year at C.H.S., offers nourishing well-balanced meals to any student.

Congregating in the newest addition to the fleet of C.H.S. buses are bus drivers Bud Delanoy, Kenny Resler, Joe Shively, Clifford Perlich, Charlie Hess, Allen Zeigler, Jack McConnell, Bob Gross, Ray Palmer, Don Brown, Gerald Bricker, Bernie Wappes, and Eldon Anderson.

Class of 1967 prepares for the future

Four years ago the class of 1967 entered a new world, the yet-to-be-conquered world of high school. There were no important projects during that year, just preparation for the remaining three years, each one requiring more skill and knowledge than the last.

Highlighting the sophomore year were studies, class sweaters, and record-breaking card sales. The following year was filled with new sights, experiences, and goals. The junior store, candy sales, class rings, the junior play, and the junior-senior prom were part of those experiences.

Then came the senior year with all its activities and the ultimate goal—graduation. It was the most memorable year but also the most hectic with so many decisions to be made. Fish fries, plays, magazine sales, and school spirit were only a part of the activities. Money became scarce when senior pictures, announcements, and caps and gowns were mentioned. The seniors had the honor of being guests at the junior-senior prom, recalling their junior year and the prom they hosted. Baccalaureate and their last appearance, commencement, revealed mixed emotions. After the year-end activities ceased, the seniors set out to plan and fulfill their goals and futures . . . And all that is left is wonderful memories.

The biggest money making project was the Junior Store.

The class of 1966 looked forward to an exciting year. The sponsors, Mr. Norman, Mr. N. Baker, and Mrs. Shaffer helped plan for the class party and other activities.

The Junior Store, which was also sponsored by Mr. Norman, was a big money making project. The store was managed by Barb Fudge, Penny Lamle, Mark Hollopeter, and Gregg Baker.

After much deliberation the rings were chosen; they were very proud of them.

The candy sale was a big success. It broke all other previous records.

The standard traditions of C.H.S. sophomores were carried on by ninety-seven personalities. Miss Felbusch and Mr. Woodcox found themselves in charge of this class.

The class of 1969 received new responsibilities such as their card sales and the selecting of their class sweaters. The new class chose the colors of maroon and white for their sweaters. The emblem was designed by Mrs. Irby, the high school art teacher.

Sandy Hendrickson, shown here filling the sacks of cards to be distributed to the class members, was one of the team captains for the card sales.

Ninety hopeful freshmen added to the crowded halls of CHS. Freshman sponsors, Mr. Paxson, Miss Rathjen, and Mrs. Irby guided them.

"Come as a surf-bum" was the theme of their first class party. That night was probably the first time the hall was used as a race track for skateboards.

Everyone supported the freshman basketball team aided by the cheerleaders who were Valerie Schwaberow, Lana Wakeman, and Linda Hurst.

They had many different experiences, which helped them prepare for their sophomore year.

The first twenty minutes of the day are the most hectic to any student, and especially so to the freshman. These freshman girls are trying to get themselves organized before rushing to their first period class.

STAFF'S NOTE

Dear Student Body,

With "The Year of the Flight" coming to an end, the 1967 Tusitala staff in surveying the highlights of an eventful and worthwhile school year hopes that we have captured the most important of these events for you. By recapturing these incidents of both a joyous and serious nature we hope that we have produced a book not only for memories but also as an accurate record for all posterity.
